

Parade will be massive

By VALERIE EVENSEN
Press-Record Staff Writer
Thousands of Quad-Cityans and area residents are expected to view the mammoth four community parade scheduled at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 3.

It promises to be possibly the largest marching and motorized procession ever witnessed here.

The caravan of lavishly decorated floats, undressed bands, Clydesdale horses, decorated flatbed and tractor trailer trucks, musical ensembles, dancers and clowns will offer a Bicentennial tribute on the nation's 200th anniversary.

The parade also will salute four star General Andrew Jackson Goodpastor, U.S. Army, retired supreme commander of the U.S. Military Training Organization (NATO), forces and a native son of Granite City.

Gen. Goodpastor, the former director of the Joint Staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and deputy commander of the U.S. Military Assistance Command in Vietnam from July 1966 to August 1969, will serve as parade marshal.

More than 150 units are scheduled to gather no later than 10 a.m. Saturday, July 3, at the parade assembly point stretching north from 28th Street along Madison Avenue and Iowa Street to Nameoki Road.

Each unit has been assigned a number and a starting position.

by the Bicentennial Commission of Granite City, organizers of the parade in cooperation with Bicentennial committees in neighboring communities.

Large floats and trucks will assemble on either side of Madison Avenue north of 28th Street, with marching units converging along Iowa Street and Klein Street, Venice.

The two segments will intersect as the individual unit's number indicates, to merge into one continuous flow at 28th Street and Madison Avenue.

The route will take the paraders south on Madison Avenue to Broadway in Venice. Special arrangements currently are being negotiated by Bicentennial Commission officers to enable the units to disperse in orderly fashion at the concluding point Broadway and Klein Street, Venice.

Information concerning streets to be closed to traffic during the parade and dispersal procedures will be explained in detail in a later publication. Richard Chocik, parade executive director, said today.

Gen. Goodpastor, accompanied by U.S. Congressman Melvin Price (Ill.-8th Dist.) will lead the parade, traveling the length of the parade route before returning to the reviewing stand at 15th Street and Madison Avenue.

Signatures may be too few to prevent sewers

With only two minutes remaining before Monday's 5 p.m. deadline, opponents of the creation of a special taxing district for sanitary sewers in Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice Townships (Area One), filed 166 pages of petitions signed by those seeking to block the project.

Members of the sewer committee said Wednesday the petition drive apparently fell short of blocking new sewers. Opponents disagreed.

Miss Evelyn Bowles, county clerk of Madison County, said a rough accounting made when the petitions were filed showed 2,073 purported signatures of property owners and 1,724 purported signatures of registered voters. She was unable to speculate whether the numbers appeared sufficient or deficient to prevent the creation of the taxing district.

Miss Bowles noted there has not been a formal count of the number of landowners or the number of registered voters within the boundaries of Area One, so it is impossible at this time to know whether there are enough "anti" signatures.

State law requires that 51 per cent of the property owners and 51 per cent of the registered voters must sign petitions opposing the creation of the district or the district will be created.

Miss Bowles estimated it will take at least a week or 10 days for her staff to determine the validity of each signature and to compare each against actual ownership and registered voter records to determine what percentage of each actually signed the petitions.

Duplications, non-residence and other factors also are expected to be taken into account.

It has been estimated that there are over 3,000 households in Area One. The average number of registered voters in each household is not known. It also is yet to be determined if one signature by a land owner would count as a signature against the district both as a land owner and as a registered voter.

When the 5 p.m. deadline Monday, the petitions were brought to Miss Bowles' office at 4:45 p.m., but were in the wrong order. Each set had to be separated into registered voter and land owner stocks and had to be numbered.

The economic depression beginning in 1929 and continuing for a number of years had a deep impact on the Quad-Cities, including the mammoth Granite City Steel plant.

A look backward by a mill historian notes that the United States industrial system is characterized by considerable instability.

Economic conditions at any moment tend to be significantly different from those of the more or less immediate past.

As a consequence of this irregular pattern of business conditions, manufacturing enterprise at almost every point in history has faced an uncertain future.

'Back to the drawing board' for tax rates

Revision of all tax rates extended thus far in preparation for this year's tax collection was under way at the office of County Clerk Evelyn Bowles today as the result of a legal opinion holding that any extensions for "loss of collection" cannot be made under present state law.

Miss Bowles told the Press-Record that the new rate computation will result in "fractional" changes in virtually all tax rates already extended by the tax division of her office and certified to taxing districts throughout the county.

Only those rates which are at their statutory maximums will be unaffected by the revision, she said.

Work on the rate revisions was begun Tuesday night after Miss Bowles received a legal opinion from Don Smith, assistant state's attorney, that tax levies, and consequently the rates, should not be increased on a percentage basis to make up for losses in collection of taxes.

Miss Bowles said that her office had increased tax levies by 1 per cent on all rates to make up for taxes not paid to township and county collectors during tax collection period. Most townships in Madison County make tax collections ranging from 95 to 98 per cent of the amount billed, but seldom accomplish a 100 per cent collection.

The development came as new tax rates computed earlier were certified to many taxing districts, including those in the Quad-Cities.

Such rate certifications received this week indicate that Granite City residents will pay bills on the basis of higher tax rates in the city of Granite City, in Granite City Township and in Granite City School District 9.

The overall tax rates for these three districts, all of them subject to minor revisions resulting from the new rate computations, include Granite City School district: Total rate of $3.742 per $100 assessed valuation, up 3.5 cents over the 1974 rate of $3.570. Venetian school taxes were paid in 1975.

Granite City municipality: New rate of $1.388 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 2.9 cents over the 1974 rate of $1.359.

Granite City Township: Total town tax rate of 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of 1.3 cents over the 1974 rate of 19.7 cents.

Miss Bowles said any changes made in the rates "will be very minor" and will involve differences of only a few mills.

The new School district rate presented to the Board of Education Tuesday night, is made up of $2.55 in the educational fund, up from $2.525 last year; 37.5 cents in the building fund, up from $37.00; 12 cents in the transportation fund, up from 11.75 cents; 25.92 cents in the municipal retirement fund, up from 23.50 cents, and 42.78 cents in the bonds and interest fund, down from 44 cents last year.

Tully A. Heubner, director of business affairs, told the School Board that the district's assessed valuation for the 1975 tax year has been fixed at $21,354,636, an increase of $903,843 over the 1974 (Continued on Page 29)

$7 million budget avoids city's usual fund 'brinkmanship'

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer
Granite City is projecting expenditures of more than $7 million during the current 1976-77 fiscal year in a new budget bill approved by the City Council Monday night.

The total budget of $7,077,425 includes $4,143,352 in appropriations in the general fund and special operating accounts, and $2,934,073 in expenditures out of federal revenue sharing funds.

Adoption of the budget figures Monday night marked the earliest solution of budget problems in many years.

Under state law the city has until July 31 to enact a budget and appropriation bill, but in recent years city officials went down to the wire in completing budget work and on several occasions passed the final budget within a few minutes of the deadline.

The latest budget bill offered the council Monday night by its Finance Committee was approved unanimously on a motion by Seventh Ward Alderman Ronald Coleman, chairman of the committee.

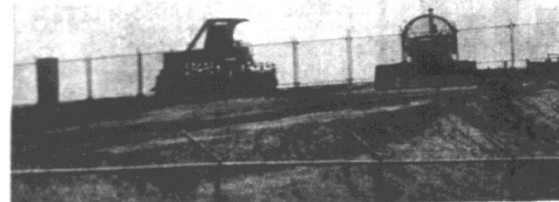

Coleman provided in the motion that the budget now be prepared in ordinance form for enactment by the council Monday night, June 28.

The $7,077,425 appropriation offered Monday night was the fourth budget draft since early April and showed substantial increases over budget items of earlier proposals. The first budget draft was offered April 26, totaling $5,866,431 in both the operating budget and federal revenue sharing items.

That budget was held over for further conferences because some aldermen contended it could be trimmed considerably.

A revised draft was presented May 12. It proposed a budget of $5,798,862 in operating accounts and $451,800 in federal revenue sharing accounts for a total of $6,250,662. This was followed by a third draft on June 7 calling for a total appropriation of $5,942,864.

40-year sewer bonds retired 2 years early

Granite City will be able to pay off all outstanding sewer bonds in the Nameoki Particular Area II sewer construction area this year, resulting in savings of $135,000 in interest costs, City Treasurer Paul Rutledge told the City Council Monday night.

In a letter to the aldermen, commending city officials for their handling of the bond amortization period, Rutledge said his office will pay off the bonds Sept. 1.

Rutledge told the aldermen that sufficient funds have been collected to retire $303,000 worth of bonds, all that are outstanding from the Feb. 6, 1956, bond sale which financed the Nameoki Particular Area II sanitary sewer construction.

Some of the bonds were not to mature until 1996, 20 years from now, he noted.

Rutledge said sound investments of the money collected for the sewer bond retirement, plus the growth in the areas using the sewers were primarily responsible for being able to retire the bonds early and save the $135,000 in interest charges.

Sewer users in the Particular Area II have not paid monthly sewer bills since August of 1974 when regular collections were halted. They continue to pay the $6 quarterly charge for sewage treatment.

When the Particular Area II sewers were installed, each residence on the line was required to pay $2.50 per month toward retiring the bonds.

Those in the original Nameoki Area program, the former city of Nameoki which was annexed by Granite City in 1949, had been paying the $2.50 monthly charge since 1954.

In December 1972, a moratorium was declared on the collection of monthly sewer fees in the original Nameoki Area, but billing in that area had to be resumed Oct. 1, 1973, when it was determined that the funds on hand were insufficient.

to retire the bonds. In August of 1974, the city council declared a final moratorium on sewer collections in the original Nameoki Area and extended the moratorium to Nameoki Particular Area II.

The bonds on the original Nameoki Area sewers were retired in 1974, but the bonds on the Particular Area II could not be retired until delinquent accounts were collected to have enough money to retire the bonds.

In action Monday night, the city council voted to publish a bond call notice in a Chicago newspaper during July, calling in all of the bonds as of Sept. 1, 1976, which is the interest date on all the bonds.

At Rutledge's request, the council also agreed to publish the bond call in the Wall Street Journal, notifying all bond holders that interest on the bonds will end in August and all bonds may be sold back to the city Sept. 1 or later.

The original bond ordinance carried a provision that all bonds could be called six months after Sept. 1, 1976, and interest would halt after the Aug. 31 anniversary date, which is paid Sept. 1.

Rutledge noted the city will have to pay off $9,000 principal in bonds which have matured as well as $5,239 in interest on all the bonds Sept. 1, but interest will cease on all the bonds. Rutledge said it will be difficult to locate all of the bonds immediately, but that a majority, $191,000 worth of the bonds, is held by clients of the Columbia Securities of Northbrook, Ill.

A total of 400 bonds were sold for the Particular Area II construction, of which the first 97 have already matured.

The Sept. 1 bond payment will retire through bond maturity the bond call will make it possible for the city to halt interest on bonds 98 through 400 and recall them.

Rutledge noted the $2.50 monthly fee to retire sewer bonds will continue in Nameoki Particular Areas III and IV, both of which are fairly new bond issues.

Particular Area III includes North Granite City and scattered areas in the city which were provided sewers under the Particular Area III program.

Particular Area IV is the Clark Avenue and Gary Avenue areas, which were provided sewers within the past two years.

It was noted that monthly sewer bills for the Particular Areas III and IV are printed in blue ink while the original Nameoki Area and Particular Area II bills were printed in black ink.

Persons who have been receiving bills printed in blue ink will continue to receive monthly sewer bills while the billing in black ink halted in 1971.

Harmonious evening at River Fest

Fans and members of the SPESBISQA, Inc. will have their chance to enjoy their kind of music Saturday when River Fest Harmony Night comes to the Mississippi River Festival, held on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The SPESBISQA, or Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, is the governing body for the nationwide network of barbershop quartet singers and fans.

This season's Barbershop Harmony Night at the MRF features Louisville's Thoroughbred Chorus, the Pittsburgh Four and the 4th Edition from Cleveland.

As many barbershop harmony fans know, the name of the Society may have been founded in just, but members take their music seriously.

It was 1908 when some men who loved their music decided to organize and took the opportunity to form a non-profit, non-commercial, governmental

Each year, they hold competitions where international chorus champions are crowned. The Thoroughbred Chorus, a large group from Louisville, has been named international champion four times. The chorus formed in 1947, was first crowned in 1962 and won again in 1966, 1969 and 1974.

Since the reigning champions must wait two years after winning before competing, the Thoroughbreds are obviously among the best the Society has to offer.

The Pittsburgh Four have been entertaining barbershoppers and fans for nearly 20 years, with a recent tour of the Pacific to their credit. The group, friends and old-time favorites with new tunes and comedy to provide family fun and entertainment.

Tom Paxton, the remaining original member of the group has served again as a certified harmony accuracy judge. He and the other three members of the group have as their most recent accomplishment a SPESBISQA sponsored tour of England and Germany.

The 4th Edition, comprised of four ladies from Cleveland, is the newest of the group. Just 18 months after incorporating in April 1975, the group captured the championship title at an international competition in Salt Lake City and was named the International Queens of Harmony of Sweet Adelines. Since then, extensive travels have taken the 4th Edition throughout the U.S. and Canada.

No reopening of big GC lock until work completed

The 1,200-foot main lock at Locks No. 27, Granite City, will remain closed to Mississippi River (Chain of Rocks Canal) traffic until all scheduled maintenance and repair work has been completed this summer.

James A. Petersen, chief, Operations Division, St. Louis District, Army, Corps of Engineers, noted this week that the big lock here was closed to vessel traffic June 14.

On June 18, 19 and 20, bulkheads were placed into position, enabling dewatering to proceed.

"Since the main lock is fully dewatered and the contractor has begun working inside the chamber, the main lock will not be reopened to alleviate traffic congestion until all work is complete," Petersen said.

"The 600-foot auxiliary lock at Locks No. 27 will remain open to vessels. Full cooperation of vessel owners and operators is requested in order to lock through in a safe and efficient manner."

Petersen added: "At Alton

Locks and Dam No. 26, the deteriorated lower left miter gate of the main lock will be removed for repair and temporarily replaced with a spare gate on July 2. That lock will be closed to all traffic for about 12 hours, starting at 7 a.m. July 2.

"The damaged lower left miter gate and Winfield, Mo. Lock and Dam No. 25, replaced with a spare gate May 5, has been repaired. On June 29, the lock will be closed for 12 hours, starting at 7 a.m. for reinstallation of the repaired gate."

HOUSE BURGLARY
Sadie Lancaster, 1106 Grand Ave. Madison, reported at 8:05 p.m. Wednesday that she returned home from work and found her kitchen door had been pried open. Reported taken were an eight track tape player, stereo component, and several tapes.

Drug and theft charges filed

Four persons were charged after police executed a search warrant at 3004 E. 23rd St. at 2:15 a.m. Tuesday and alleged finding about 50 grams of marijuana, hypodermic needles and a syringe, and checks, the latter believed stolen from Bob's Glass, 2501 Iowa St., June 5. A fifth person has been charged in O'Fallon, Ill., in a related case, police said.

Granite City investigators said they worked more than 18 straight hours coordinating evidence obtained here with possible related investigations in St. Clair and Cass Counties.

Late Wednesday, Andrew Williamson, 31, was charged with forgery, possession of a hypodermic syringe or needle, and theft.

Buddy Fields, 21, St. Louis, who was arrested in the same apartment, was charged with conspiracy; police allege that one of the checks recovered was a $100 bill.

A woman who said she was Donna Lindsay, of the 3000 block of East 23rd Street, was arrested there at the same time and charged with possession of cannabis. She was released Wednesday on a $5,000 recognizance bond.

Officers also arrested Janet Joann Williamson, 20, of East 23rd Street, and charged her with possession of a hypodermic syringe or needle. She was released Wednesday on an $8,000 recognizance bond.

O'Fallon police Tuesday arrested Lester Spink, 17, St. Louis, and charged him with forgery of a Bob's Glass check. He was transferred to the St. Clair County Jail in lieu of posting bond.

Another man was arrested Tuesday evening and was taken to the O'Fallon Police Department but was released without being charged in the case. He is still charged with unlawful possession of a knife.

Fields' bond was set at $10,000 and Williamson's bonds total $15,000.

Camelot auction contacts to start

Camelot, of English folklore, will come to life in this arena on Saturday, Oct. 2.

The annual benefit dinner and auction will take place at 5:30 p.m. that day at Sunset Hills Country Club.

Ticket sales and solicitation of goods to be auctioned is being started this afternoon by the two sponsoring clubs, Granite City Optimists and Granite City Rotarians.

Tickets including a buffet meal will cost $12. A wide variety of unusual articles is planned for sale to the highest bidders during the evening of the event.

Proceeds are used by the two groups to help finance many charitable causes in the Quad-Cities.

Plans for the auction were reviewed at Tuesday's weekly Rotary luncheon, where a film, "Uncle Sam, the Man and the Legend," was shown.

President Bill H. Terrell presided and Steve Bristol, president-elect, introduced the film. It was noted that the club's annual installation dinner is set for 6:45 p.m. tomorrow at Sunset Hills Country Club.

Dave Lane of the Coordinated Youth Services discussed local recycling activities, and it was disclosed that the Rotarians' prayer breakfast concept has spread to a group of Illinois state legislators, including Rep. Everett Steele. The lawmakers meet weekly for breakfast in the General Assembly in session.

Max Brendel, who is assisting Captain Michael Tompkins of the Salvation Army here this summer, was a guest at the meeting. Richard Kerch told of Rotary visits made in Jordan and Greece.

Also discussed were the club's Bicentennial float and the District 646 conference Saturday at Quincy.

Warrant served

Richard E. Geppert, 34, of the 1200 block of Nineteenth St., turned himself into Macoupin County sheriff's deputies at Carville this week and was served with a warrant alleging aggravated battery.

This year, one of the major remaining tasks before Congress is to pass a "Sunset" law legislation which would force the White House and Congress to review and reform the various regulatory agencies.

CAR FIRE

Long Lake firemen responded to a car fire at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday on Route 111, one half mile north of 170. A 1967 Volkswagen belonging to a Besie Goodman, Edwardsville, was in flames when firemen arrived. Damage was estimated at between $600 and $700.

HAIR CAR FIRE

Granite City firemen at 12:35 p.m. Wednesday extinguished a fire in a car at 19th Street and Cleveland Boulevard. The fire caused about $10,000 damage and firemen were on the scene 15 minutes. Faulty electrical wiring was believed to be the cause of the fire.

YOUNG WOMAN HURT

Karen Richardson, 20, Rural Route 2, Box 748, Granite City, was injured in an auto accident at 8 p.m. Wednesday and was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for injuries to her left knee and right hand. X-rays were taken and she was released.

Letter from Washington

by Senator Charles H. Percy

Reform efforts gaining ground

"Big government" has become the major campaign tactic of this election season. Recent polls show that big government is viewed as the single most dangerous threat to the country by 64 percent of those surveyed. One of the candidates fighting to come to Washington, but running successfully, so far—on an anti-Washington platform.

The core of the anti-Washington feeling, I believe, is the gut reaction of a free people against any government, however benevolent or well-intentioned, that encroaches more and more upon their freedom to make decisions affecting their daily lives.

The revelations of corruption and abuse in some political offices has further antagonized the public against a bureaucracy they feel is no longer working for them.

Yet, as newspapers continue to banner each new anti-Washington "charge of the day," little attention has been paid to the efforts being made in Congress to curb the sprawling growth of federal bureaucracies and improve Congressional efficiency.

A number of examples of this Congressional reform movement might be cited. The Budget Control Act, which will go into full effect this fall, has already laid the groundwork for putting Congressional spending on a sound, business-like footing and hopefully achieving a balanced budget by 1979.

Also discussed were the club's Bicentennial float and the District 646 conference Saturday at Quincy.

In 1972 Congress passed the Federal Advisory Act which requires careful Congressional monitoring of the numerous federal advisory committees, citizen panels established to advise the President and other government officers and agencies. In an effort to cut down the number of these committees, the Act limited advisory charters to two years. Unless the committee's charter is renewed it automatically is abolished.

In the past two and a half years more than 700 of these panels have been eliminated. Over the same period of time, however, 624 new committees were created. When the Federal Advisory Act went into effect in 1973 there were 1,439 different advisory committees. The current total is down to 1,341.

The Senate Government Operations Committee has estimated that these committees cost the taxpayers $42 million a year. The Federal Advisory Act was a step in the right direction in attempting to eliminate some of these costly panels, and more of them have been abolished in the few years than ever before.

However, it is apparent that the Federal Advisory Act is in need of revision and improvement. Steps must be taken to organize and toughen the oversight process so that committee reviews are more easily accomplished. The Government Operations Committee has begun to study ways of strengthening the Act and I am confident that corrective measures will be adopted.

Further delay in study of petitions

Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles told the Press-Record this morning that her office has encountered delays in computerizing information for petitions against the Four Township Sanitary Sewer program and, in the meantime, legislation which would force the White House and Congress to review and reform the various regulatory agencies.

Park building contract let

C. D. Peters Construction Co. of Granite City was awarded a contract in the amount of $19,745 by the Granite City Park Board last night to erect a combination concession and restroom building in West Granite Park.

The local firm submitted the lowest of two bids received. A and M Construction of Edwardsville submitted a bid of $24,772.

The board also agreed to advertise for bids to repair roofs at the Nameki Recreation Center, Wilson Park swimming pool pavilion building and the park office.

Suspect arson

Arson is believed to have been the cause of a fire which caused about $2,500 damage to a garage of Leroy Daugherty, 9 Watertown Circle, at 10:25 a.m. Tuesday.

Firemen reported that when they arrived on the scene, they found a window in the rear garage door broken. The fire was believed started in a stack of papers near the rear of the garage.

The damage was estimated at $1,500 to the building and $1,000 to the contents.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL

Deborah Rogers, 20, Cahokia, was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday for head injuries suffered in a head-on accident between two cars. X-rays were taken and she was released.

Man beaten, is critical

James Strum, 2713 Harding Blvd., was admitted to Firms Desloge Hospital, St. Louis, early this morning in critical condition after having been severely beaten last night.

He was found wandering behind homes in the 2600 block of West 22nd Street at 11:15 p.m. Wednesday and a resident of that block called for an ambulance. He was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment and then was transferred to the St. Louis hospital.

Police talked to Strum in the emergency room here but reported his injuries were too severe to enable them to determine where he was beaten or other details of the assault.

Officers noted one eye was swollen shut, some teeth had been knocked out and he suffered other injuries to his head and body.

$132 million in Bi-State budget

A budget of $131,990,066, of which $45,150,356 is earmarked for operation of the Bi-State Transit System, was approved by the Bi-State Development Agency board Wednesday. The budget is for the 1976-77 year beginning July 1.

In addition to the funds for operating the bus system, $375,250 is allocated for operation of the Gateway Arch train system and $249,005 for Bi-State Parks Airport at Cahokia. Also budgeted is $335,000 for general agency fund to finance expenses of the executive offices and for coordinating port facilities.

The amount for capital improvements will go almost entirely for improvements to the transit system which will include purchase of 200 new buses, installation of a two-way radio system and construction of additional shelters for customers.

St. Bartholomew's marks 75th anniversary year

The 75th anniversary of St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church, 22nd Street and Grand Avenue, will be observed throughout the year with various services and events planned by the congregation and the present rector, the Rev. Wilbur L. Lear.

The initial program at the church was a visit by the Rt. Rev. Albert W. Hildstad, D.D., bishop of Springfield, who officiated at the sacrament of confirmation for a group of children and adults this month. On Sunday Oct. 28, 1900 25 area residents met at Emerson School for a service led by the Rev. John Chandler White of East St. Louis. Immediately after the service a meeting was held to formally organize an Episcopal congregation in Granite City with E. J. Pauliet and T. D. Bowen elected wardens and John Hildstad elected treasurer of the new membership. Miss Minnie Hutchins was named organist for the group.

Two days later the Rt. Rev. George F. Seymour, bishop of Springfield, gave his consent to the creation of the new congregation which was admitted formally to the union with the Diocese of Springfield as St. Bartholomew's Mission in December of the same year. From that time until 1904, services were held by Father White in various locations and during that year the Rev. Herbert H. Mitchell was named vicar of St. Bartholomew's. He began holding regular services on Tukey's Hall, 1905 and State streets.

On the day of Pentecost, June 3, 1906, ground was broken for a church building located at the present address on land which was donated to the church by the Nordinghaus family. By September of that year the building was completed and the first service was held in the new facility.

In subsequent years the life and work of the Episcopal Church centered around the little brick chapel and moved forward under the care of several priests, including the Rev. F. W. Foulard and the Rev. F. B. Whitman.

The Rev. William F. Tomlinson came to Granite City in 1912 to serve as vicar of St. Bartholomew's as well as churches in Glen Carbon, Edwardsville and Wood River. He remained a resident of Granite City until his death in 1932. He is buried in St. John's cemetery.

Father Tomlinson was well known in the community for his long ministry to the Armenian people who at that time did not have a church or priest of their own. During 1927 Father Tomlinson retired and was succeeded by the Rev. H. R. Ziegler. After a year of service here the Rev. Ziegler moved to the east coast and was succeeded here by the Rev. F. R. Burford, the Rev. R. A. Martin, the Rev. J. H. Terry and the Rev. J. E. Price.

In 1929 the Rev. R. T. Mulligan came to Granite City and began the work of rebuilding the life of St. Bartholomew's which had suffered greatly during the depression days. Father Mulligan was succeeded by the Rev. M. R.

Womens society elect officers

The Women's Missionary Society of Central Free Methodist Church elected Mrs. Vera Lynn president at a meeting held last week in the home of Mrs. Ruth Stinson in Glen Carbon. Co-hostess was Mrs. Joan Phillips.

Other officers to serve for the forthcoming year include Mrs. Corinne Stevenson, first vice-president and program chairman, Mrs. Wilma Bowen, second vice-president and director of outreach, Mrs. Lola McCarty, recording secretary, Mrs. Edna Friend, treasurer, Mrs. Edith Ernst, missionary study secretary, Mrs. Ann Thomas and Mrs. Ruth Anderson, stewardship secretaries and Mrs. Viola Atkins, Junior Missionary Society director.

Mrs. Lynn presided at the session and was in charge of the devotions. Officers' reports included a gain in membership, missionary tidings, subscriptions and funds for missions.

The group will meet on Monday, June 28 for an all day meeting at the church fellowship hall, and each one attending is to bring a sack lunch and material for quilt blocks. Mrs. Lynn announced. A salad luncheon was served by the hostesses after the meeting.

BICENTENNIAL MEETING
The final meeting for the Madison Ethnic Bicentennial Celebration will be held at 7 p.m. today in the Madison City Hall.

Becker who continued with the work of the church until 1942 when he left to enter the U. S. Navy as a chaplain.

The congregation welcomed the Rev. William H. Hay as the next pastor. Although he had retired, he returned to the church to serve in Granite City, Glen Carbon and Edwardsville. During Father Hay's tenure the new narthex to the church was added, the interior of the church remodeled and the basement of the parish hall, which was built in 1929, was completed.

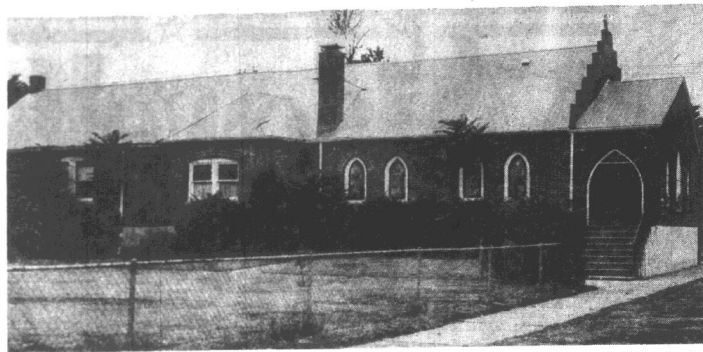

Father Hay retired in 1961 and was followed by the Rev. Ralph Krohn. Under his guidance, St. Bartholomew's was brought to parochial status. Named as first rector was the Rev. David E. Nyberg who is well remembered by Quakers for his many civic activities in the community. Father Nyberg resigned in 1963 to enter the U. S. Air Force as chaplain and is now rector of St. James Church in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The Rev. Paul R. Dicka came to Granite City where he served at St. Bartholomew's until 1966 when he accepted a post in Iowa.

On Jan. 1, 1967, the present rector of St. Bartholomew's the Rev. Wilbur L. Lear came to this area from Chicago. Since his tenure he has been instrumental in further remodeling of the church and complete renovation of the parish hall and Undercroft.

The Chely memorial organ has been installed and a number of gifts and memorials have been accepted by the church, including a hand carved statue of St. Bartholomew, designed and created for the parish in Italy, which was dedicated in the fall of 1975.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 22nd Street and Grand Avenue, where services will be held throughout the year to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the church. The Rev. Wilbur L. Lear is currently serving as pastor of the parish, and with members of the congregation will plan programs relating to the observance.

Individual fireworks pose severe hazards again this July 4th

Efforts to improve control of dangerous fireworks by federal government action are at a virtual standstill, warns the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, at least for the coming Fourth of July holidays.

"This is a matter of great concern to us," says Virginia S. Boyce, executive director. "All the data and information on fireworks casualties we have presented to federal agencies over the past years have been swept aside, and the injuries continue. Frequently, the victims are children, often the innocent bystander." The Society's position is that all fireworks should be restricted to licensed public displays. "These exhibitions let us enjoy the fun and excitement without the hazards," Mrs. Boyce emphasized.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission proposed this year to outlaw the sale of all fireworks larger than the 4-inch size—but allowing other equally hazardous common fireworks such as rockets, Roman candles, mines, shells and most sparklers—and not to be effective until 180 days after its order (October at the earliest). The Society's legal appeals for more immediate action to ban all firecrackers were turned down, and so another July 4th will pass without effective fireworks control, it was noted.

Although 28 states have enacted model laws recommended by the Society, these laws are often undermined by fireworks purchased from illegal, under-the-counter sources, or from nearby states without such restrictions, she added.

NSPB estimates there were 2,000 fireworks casualties in the United States last year during the month of July alone, and more than 400 of these were injuries to the eye. Some of the most common dangerous practices are taping firecrackers together and putting them in a can or bottle, or removing the explosive to make "a bigger bomb."

But all pyrotechnics are inherently hazardous, even those that are well made; they are explosives and there is no truly safe way to use them, Mrs. Boyce said.

"We urge parents especially to keep their unwary young away from fireworks and those who use them," she said. "Enjoy the holiday pyrotechnics in licensed public exhibitions. Celebrate the Fourth, and celebrate it safely."

NEARING COMPLETION south of Pontoon Road near Maryville Road is the temporary headquarters of the new Colonial Bank of Granite City, which is due to open Monday. The temporary bank headquarters will be used until construction of a new building nearby is completed. The new bank will be open six days each week.

STREET OF FLAGS A collection of 12 United States flags line Madison Avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets, near the First National Bank in Madison. The flags flying through July 4 are authentic replicas of historical U. S. flags. (Press-Record Photo)

Historical flags on display

Twelve historical flags of the United States are being flown through July 4 at the First National Bank in Madison as part of the Bicentennial celebration.

The authentication of the flag designs and history was undertaken by the Flag Research Center, Worcester, Mass. According to Mrs. Margaret Lee, public relations director for the bank, the display of flags is available on a loan basis to school, church, civic and Scout groups.

The flags on display are: Bedford Flag, the oldest known flag in the United States. It was carried at the Battle of Concord, April 19, 1775, the opening day of the American Revolution, and is still in existence today in Bedford, Mass.

Bunker Hill Flag, this flag, often incorrectly shown with the blue field, was the final version of the famous New England flag, which was carried at the Battle of Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775.

Washington's Cruisers Flag, the first vessel in the American Navy, commissioned by George Washington in 1775. Few a pine tree flag of New England with motto: An Appeal to Heaven.

First Continental Regiment Flag, the flag of Pennsylvania's 1st Continental Regiment with the motto: I Refuse to be Dominated. Carried during the Revolution, Boston to Yorktown.

Grand Union Flag, by superimposing six white stripes on the British red ensign, the colonists created the first national flag of the United States, properly called the Continental Colors, used from 1775 to 1777.

The Moultrie Flag, this flag flew over Fort Moultrie in the harbor at Charleston, South Carolina during the unsuccessful British attack on June 28, 1776. It became part of the current South Carolina state flag.

The Gadsden Flag, the flag of the first commander of the U. S. Navy, Esek Hopkins. It takes the popular name from Colonel Christopher Gadsden, who gave replica of the original to the S. C. Provincial Congress.

Rhode Island Regiment Flag, this typical regimental color of the Revolution combines a state symbol, the anchor, with a national symbol, thirteen gold stars. The original flag is still in Providence, R. I.

Bennington Flag, the oldest Stars and Stripes in existence. Used at the Battle of Bennington, Aug. 16, 1777, by the Vermont Militia. The first Stars and Stripes to lead American armed forces on land.

Betsy Ross Flag, named after its alleged designer. This pattern was one of many if use from 1777 to 1796. Although its authenticity has often been challenged, this flag has become an American historical legend.

First Navy Jack, a popular variation of the United States Naval ensign which used the rattlesnake device, first employed by Benjamin Franklin, and its well known warning: "Don't Tread on Me."

Star-Spangled Banner, the fifteen stars and fifteen stripes of this battered banner inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem during the bombardment of Fort M'Henry in 1814.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boyle have returned to their home at Cedar Rapids, Ia., after a visit here with relatives. They also attended the 50th anniversary celebration of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Boyle, June 12.

Fences between rural property are regulated

Few things seem to escape government regulations these days, but state laws governing the placement and maintenance of fences separating Illinois farm lands have been on the books for almost as long as fences have been on the prairies.

State law specifies that fences four and a half feet high and in good repair — consisting of rails, timber boards, stone, hedges, barb wire, woven wire or whatever material local fence viewers agree to — constitute a legal fence.

The Illinois State Bar Association says the laws exist primarily to settle disputes between owners of property in unincorporated areas of the state.

In counties under a township organization, the public is empowered to determine what shall constitute a legal fence at any annual meeting, in counties not under township organization, the power to regulate the height of fences is vested in the county board.

Fence viewers are called upon when disputes arise over the placement or maintenance of a fence.

When two or more owners have lands adjoining, each of them is to make and maintain a just proportion of the division fence between the lands.

State law says a one-year notice, in writing, must be given the occupant of adjoining land if an owner wishes to remove a portion of a division fence. The other occupant then has the right to challenge the removal.

If an owner has constructed a division fence that is later found to be on the property of the adjoining land, the owner may enter the other person's land and remove it within six months, or after any crops that are growing on the adjoining land are harvested.

The owner of livestock is liable for making repairs to a fence damaged by the livestock. State law even says that the damaged party may keep possession of livestock under certain circumstances until the fence repairs or financial reimbursement is made.

Petitions

they actually were filed at 4 p.m. Monday, two minutes before the deadline," Miss Bowles related.

She said a decision is expected sometime tomorrow on whether petition signers were successful in blocking the creation of special taxing districts in Area Two (State Park Place) or Area Three (Eagle Park Acres, Cloverleaf and East Madison).

Petitions for Areas Two and Three were turned in a week before the Area One petitions. Creation of the special taxing districts has been called essential for sale of general obligation bonds to finance the one-fourth local share of the cost of constructing sanitary sewers in areas not currently served.

State and federal funds have been offered for the other three-fourths of the cost. Many of those circulating petitions to block the creation of the districts said they did not oppose sewers in the areas, but did oppose paying for the sewers through taxation.

Walter Dick Sparks, chairman of Madison County's special sewer committee, said he felt failure to create the special taxing districts would be fatal to hopes of having sewers installed.

He said studies by bonding experts have shown that financing the local share of the construction cost would be excessive if revenue bonds could be used, and any thoughts of having homeowners pay for sewers, in "jump sum" payments, were dismissed as impossible.

Sparks also said there is inadequate time to establish a new funding plan before the deadline on the state and federal grants expires in October, and failure to create the special taxing districts would mean the grant offer would be made to someone else and would not be available to Madison County.

While the estimated tax rates differ for each of the three proposed service areas, the actual rates would not be known until grants for construction and bonds were opened and awarded and it could be determined how much the local share would be in each district. It had been roughly estimated that in Area One the first year tax bill for a home assessed at $10,000 ($30,000 market value) would be $208, the amount dropping to $143 the second year and to $106 the third year. The rate would continue to drop as new homes and industries were added onto the lines and as the remaining debt decreased.

In addition to the tax bill, there would be a $25 inspection fee and approximately a $4 per month charge for sewage treatment and sewer maintenance.

Opponents of the plan said it was too costly and would impose a heavy tax burden on people who already felt they were overtaxed.

Some of those who circulated petitions opposing creation of the Area One district estimated they obtained between 60 and 70 per cent of the signatures of the property owners and registered voters. Other estimates contrasted with those figures.

Miss Bowles said it is too early to determine whether the negative petitions even come close to the 51 per cent required.

Sparks predicted the Area One petition will fall short of the 51 per cent requirement in both the number of property owners and registered voters. From his deductions, he does not think they have enough signatures," Sparks said. He estimated there are 2,466 registered voters in the Area One portion of Chouteau Township and about 3,711 in Namecki Township precincts 1, 3, 5, 8, 9 and 11 and portions of Precincts 6 and 7. For a rough estimate, total of 6,177 registered voters in Area One. With 1,734 or fewer signatures against the petition, Sparks said, "it appears they fell far short."

He also said there are about 1,466 parcels of property in the Chouteau Township portion of Area One which "using the two-owners-per-property theory, means about 2,900 property owners in Chouteau Township alone."

The number of parcels in the Namecki Township portion of Area One was still being calculated today, but Sparks said he feels there are many more in the Namecki Township portion than in the Chouteau Township part of the sewer service area.

Harry E. Hartman, attorney for the sewer committee, said his office mailed about 3,957 registered letters to homes in the district, most addressed to a husband and wife, which count as two owners.

He said there were some instances of one person owning more than one parcel of property and therefore receiving only one letter, but added that this could be offset by the numbers of widows, widowers and others who own homes themselves.

Based upon that formula, Hartman figured there are roughly 6,500 property owners in Area One. With 2,073 or fewer signatures of property owners, they might have obtained about one-third," he commented.

Noting that those who worked to defeat the taxing district are saying they were successful, Hartman warned, "You are going to hear a lot of predictions and figures thrown around in the next week or so but I doubt that anyone will come up with figures more accurate than these until Miss Bowles releases the final figures."

Hearing Friday on clean air pact with steel firm

Local residents will be given an opportunity to testify during a public hearing at 10 a.m. tomorrow as the Illinois Pollution Control Board studies an agreement between Granite City Steel and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

The hearing will be held at the Granite City Civil Defense building, 1411 Nineteenth St. Walter Franke, Region IV manager for the EPA in Collinsville, said the hearing is a part of the routine process of getting an EPA agreement on the records of the IPCB.

Since the IPCB is the only body authorized to assess fines or take other actions, it is necessary for the EPA to bring agreements before that board to have them made IPCB orders and enable fines to be assessed for violations of the orders.

The agreement to be considered tomorrow's hearing is a 43-page document signed Feb. 23 by both parties and calls for pollution control and changes totaling $11,800,000 to the coke plant, $5,700,000 to the basic oxygen furnace shop and $2,250,000 to the boiler plant at Granite City Steel.

It also permits a prompt start on construction of a fourth slab reheat furnace in the local plant.

In order to convert the agreement into an IPCB order, the EPA has to file an enforcement action against Granite City Steel alleging violations of air pollution control rules by the coke oven division, the basic oxygen furnace unit and by both facilities for failure to have an approved compliance program and project completion schedule.

The enforcement action was filed with the consent of GC Steel officials as part of the February agreement "running on normal course," Franke noted.

Rules of the IPCB call for a public hearing on each enforcement action, and the hearing first was scheduled for Edwardsville, but was changed to Granite City to allow Granite City citizens to attend and express their views, he noted.

A transfer of all of everything said at the hearing will become part of the permanent record of the agreement it, after which the IPCB will determine ap-last year's revenue sharing budget of $1,389,487.

Last-minute increases in the appropriations resulted from a decision by the Finance Committee to add $150,000 as an insurance "contingency" and an item of $97,000 for design planning on the 1955 Street overpass between West Granite City and the downtown area.

Chapman told the council that the additional insurance money may become necessary in a program to upgrade the city's insurance coverage on all public buildings and equipment.

A study of the city's insurance coverage, now believed inadequate, is under way.

The Finance Committee chairman explained that the salary costs of $86,000 for seven men to televise Granite City, sewers was transferred from the revenue sharing budget to the regular street department budget.

Another item of $25,000 for purchase of an additional sewer televising unit also was transferred from the revenue sharing account to the street department.

He said these changes were made because reimbursements could be obtained for both from Community Development funds, whereas if the item had been left in the revenue sharing budget, Community Development funds could not be used to reimburse a revenue sharing expenditure.

One of the major increases in the general fund budget is the operation of the street department for which projected expenditures total $799,238, an increase of $231,808 over last year's total of $567,430.

More than half of the increase is represented in the televising equipment items transferred from the revenue sharing department, and salary increases. Salaries in the street department budget are set at $389,430 compared to $342,471 last year. The budget also includes an additional $51,892 for part-time help and $36,714 for employee insurance.

Total budget for the fire department is set at $712,197, up from last year's $709,518. Salaries of that department total $385,486, compared to $381,180 last year.

For the police department, the budget sets up a total of $668,310, with separate budget items of $17,488 for police-reimbursable outside work and $20,000 for Granite City participation in the Metropolitan Enforcement Group for a total of $880,798.

This compares with last year's police department budget of $929,728 which included the costs of outside work and participation in the MEG unit.

Police department salaries in the budget total $680,548, up from $654,841 last year. Additional salary items include $9,622 for a secretary, the chief $9,522 for a secretary in the detective division and $26,327 for emergency call-out overtime, court time and vacation replacement.

Other projected expenditures budgeted in the new bill include $18,000 for water hydrant rental, $95,000 for street and alley lighting and $60,000 for pumping station options.

A total of $47,331 for the city engineer department is up from $39,635 last year, while cost of operating the City Hall is set at $70,874, up from $52,714.

Nutrition costs are set at $773,218, with $548,819 of this amount earmarked for the city's annual refuse collection contract.

Expenditures projected for operation of the sewage treatment plant total $582,417, an increase from $377,600 budgeted last year. The net increase of $204,817 results from operation of the city's new secondary sewage treatment plant for which additional workers have been assigned.

Salaries for operation of the plant amount to $245,351, while an additional $17,453 in salaries is estimated for clerical expenses and $8,000 for billing expenses.

An appropriation of $292,350 is set for maintenance of sewers, with $260,000 of the total budgeted for major repairs and $70,000 budgeted for contingency and overtime. The total is down from $459,138 last year.

A total of $37,600 is appropriated for the city's Bicentennial fund, including $11,000 for special events, $5,000 for the Mayor's Ball committee, $7,600 for the Ethnic committee and $5,000 for the Performing Arts committee. Only $5,000 was budgeted for this purpose last year.

For the public library, the budget provides a total of $234,300, up from $200,900 last year. Budget projects include $167,300 for salaries, $45,000 for library materials, $44,000 for insurance and $20,000 for operating expenses. Library operations are financed under a separate tax levy and are not part of the general fund.

The appropriations in the revenue sharing accounts are extended in five separate periods, which total $354,273.

In accounts established as periods three and four, partial payments for a new street sweeper are budgeted—$4,432 out of period three and $6,404 out of period four.

Budgeted items in period five total $228,285, those in period six total $430,890 and those in period seven, for which grants still are to be received later this year, total $237,250.

Period five budget items include $134,000 for construction of the new Nameoki fire station at Richmond Avenue and Johnson Road, $13,156 as partial payment for a street sweeper, $25,000 for opticon equipment and installation, $28,978 for radio and taping equipment and $2,968 for sidewalk construction in the South Ward.

Major appropriations out of the entitlement period six account include payroll items of $142,013 for the police department, $117,548 for the fire department, $2,469 for the traffic department and $7,900 for crossing guards. An item of $80,388 is budgeted for payroll in the street department and $15,000 is appropriated in account for the salary of the assistant city engineer.

Appropriations in the period seven revenue sharing budget include a series of capital expenditures. Among these items are $25,000 for a backhoe, $4,94,000 for a dump truck and $17,000 for two dump truck chassis—all for the street department.

Others include $12,446 for curbs and gutters in the First Ward, $1,500 for remodeling the city garage area, $30,000 for sewer cleaning equipment and payroll appropriations of $58,271 for the police department, $48,232 for the fire department, $1,013 for the traffic department, $4,206 for school crossing guards, and $38,177 for the street department.

GC Steel

in 1933 stood at 15 million.

The steel industry felt the impact almost immediately.

The rising and falling tides of business affect the steel industry with cumulative force and create violent fluctuations.

Therefore, the steel industry has wider swings in the business cycle than industry in general. It falls to greater depths in depressions and rises to greater heights during prosperity than most other industries.

The principal reason is that its primary function is to supply a metal which by its very nature is a material of extensive life from which durable goods are produced.

In periods of prosperity, when business is brisk, families purchase more durable consumer goods, and industries optimistically replace their existing equipment and expand their plants and facilities. This causes great activity in the steel industry.

On the other hand, when recession appears, as it did in the 1930s, a family or business seeks ways to economize, and one of the first steps taken is the postponement of expenditures for durable goods which need not be replaced.

Less is spent on capital equipment, and the steel industry feels the full impact of the recession.

If recession develops into depression, pessimism permeates the business world, replacement of equipment is almost entirely halted, widespread unemployment develops, demand, and orders for steel almost completely disappear.

When the depression gives way to revival and optimism returns, demand increases, employment rises, and steel activity reaches new heights.

In September 1930, shadows appeared.

Next, the government of the United States, influenced by the economic theories of the Keynesian School, engaged in deficit spending in an attempt to "prime the pump."

The only solution of the problem, however, was to restore full employment of the productive resources in the economy as a whole, and this was stimulated by the outbreak of the Second World War, and the eventual entry of the United States into the conflict.

While all this was taking place in the national economy, the steel company in Granite City, was struggling in its battle for survival.

Between 1930 and 1934, the total assets of the company gradually declined. In 1930, ingot production dropped sharply to 219,000 ingot tons and the volume continued to drop until it reached 103,000 tons, in 1932, after which it increased to 149,000 tons in 1933.

The total was 119,000 tons in 1934.

During the same period, shipments declined from 246,000 net tons in 1929 to 154,000 in 1930 and 70,000 in 1932; shipments rose to 106,000 in 1933 but then dropped to 78,000 net tons in 1934.

Net sales also dropped sharply—from $15,408,000 in 1929 to $8,806,000 in 1930—and continued down to $4,280,000 in 1932, after which they rose slightly to $6,279,000 in 1933 and $5,189,000 in 1934.

As sales declined under the influence of the depression, tin plate and galvanized products became more important as a percentage of sales.

During this period, net income was reported, but it declined tremendously, going from $1,683,000 in 1929 to $701,000 in 1930 and $14,000 in 1932, after which it rose to $507,000 in 1933 and then dropped to $259,000 in 1934.

Earnings on the common stock declined each year, finally reaching five cents in 1932, after which they began to rise.

Fortunately, the low price of scrap steel and the relative stability of the tin plate market made this possible.

Early action urged on new lock, dam

The American Farm Bureau Federation called on Congress today to move quickly to authorize immediate construction of a modern replacement for the Lock and Dam 26 facility on the Mississippi River at Alton.

Replacement of the facility "is of great importance to farmers and in the agricultural industry in the entire mid-section of this country and is, thus, of national concern," Harold B. Steele, president of the Illinois Farm Bureau and a member of the AFBF board of directors, said in a statement to a subcommittee of the U.S. Senate Public Works Committee.

"While our primary concern is the impact this issue has on efficiencies of production and marketing in agriculture, it needs to be pointed out that farmers and consumers alike will suffer if transportation on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers is lost or if the facility at Alton continues to generate costly delays," Steele said.

The net result of inaction would be a combination of lower prices to growers and higher food prices to consumers due to higher costs for production inputs.

"Grains, chemicals and energy commodities account for over 50 per cent of the present traffic of which grains alone constitute nearly 40 per cent and agricultural fertilizers and chemicals another 10 per cent."

"As grain production increases, the need for additional tonnage of fertilizers and other agricultural chemicals, petroleum and other commodities coming up through Lock and Dam 26 increases in proportionate amounts."

Steele said an efficient and durable lock and dam facility is needed not only by agriculture but also by businessmen and industries serving people in the Midwest.

He stressed that the river system is an essential link in moving coal and oil to generate electricity as well as steel, sand and gravel for construction projects.

Steele told the senators in his testimony today that the two locks at Alton, constructed in 1926, have a practical design of 40 million tons a year, but during 1974, about 54 million tons of bulk materials passed through the locks," he said. "The present structure at Alton constitutes a major bottleneck, since it lies just below the confluence of the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers."

"The Illinois farmer cited a possibility that the present 36-year-old structure could become 'totally inoperative' at any time."

"It would be a drastic mistake to attempt further extensive repairs of the present facility. We shall be fortunate indeed if the Corps of Engineers can keep it in usable condition during the estimated 10 to 12 years it will take to build the new facility," Steele said.

"Costly delays are already the rule."

"The loss of this facility for any appreciable period of time would be a catastrophe for agriculture in terms of increased costs of transportation and production and lower prices for grain."

Steele said tonnage has increased by more than two per cent a year since 1958, and traffic projections indicate that by 1982 the traffic demand will exceed the current maximum annual locking capacity of 73 million tons.

"At this maximum capacity, it is estimated that the locking waiting time will average in excess of 12 hours."

"During 1974, the 54 million tons moving through the existing locks caused average delays of eight hours in the main lock and an average of more than five hours for all traffic moving through both locks."

"During peak grain marketing periods the delays are much longer," he said. Steele told subcommittee members that 190 car unit trains have made rail traffic somewhat more competitive with barge traffic.

But he added, "It is not realistic to assume that rail carriers and motor carriers could easily replace the present barge traffic."

"Agriculture requires a high quality modal transportation system," Steele said.

Keith Whelan contender for Olympics; 2 other GC wrestlers defeated Granite City's hope of being represented next month at the Montreal Olympics has been narrowed to one wrestler—Keith Whelan.

The GCHS North mat standout, a Junior student, is scheduled to compete today at Brockport, N.Y., in Greco-Roman style bouts against a Minnesota matman in 114-pound competition.

If Whelan wins two out of three matches today, he will then face an opponent tomorrow to challenge for a starting spot on the U.S. team.

His brother, Kris, also a standout wrestler at GCHS North, was eliminated this week in New York at 100 pounds. He won two straight bouts on pins against a Pennsylvania athlete on a pin with five seconds remaining.

The two had been tied 2-2 up to that time. The loss gave Kris Whelan a fifth-place finish in the competition.

Walt Whitaker, wrestling mentor at North High, told the Press-Record, "Kris and Keith are relatively inexperienced at this level of competition compared to the opponents they have met."

"But the experience they are gaining in their Olympic qualifying attempts, coupled with what they will gain in the next few years, should make both top contenders for the U.S. team four years from now, as well as Keith's bright prospects this year."

Another local Olympic hopeful, Jan Gitcho, a sophomore, is scheduled to start at 130 pounds at Lafayette, Ind., in a best two-out-of-three matches series.

Wrestling at 125 pounds, he could be winning have met Kentucky's Jimmy Clark, a top seeded wrestler in his division who had upset Gitcho earlier this season.

But Corso stopped the Granite City matman at 105 and 103. In their second bout, the two were tied 5-5 after two periods before Corso executed a pair of takedowns to go up 7-5, and later momentarily exposed Gitcho's back to the mat.

Rain brings some relief, but area 9 inches short

Thunderstorms that moved into the Quad-City area Tuesday and Wednesday nights brought some relief to farmers, gardeners and weather watchers, but still left the area far behind its normal rainfall for the year so far.

Steady rainfall of several hours each night brought 37 of an inch of rain Tuesday and another 43 of an inch tonight, for a total of 1.02 inches.

Only 0.08 of an inch of rain had been reported previously this month—0.08 of an inch on June 10 and 0.02 of an inch on June 3, making total precipitation for the 34 days of June 1.02 inches less than the normal June rainfall of 4.27 inches.

What this week's rain moved over most of Madison County, weather service officials described it as a "narrow belt" of localized effect and said some areas south of here "didn't get a drop of rain."

June precipitation thus far brought to 9.09 inches the total fall so far this year, or 8.96 inches below the normal of 18.07 inches for this time of year.

Prior to this month, the Quad-City had recorded 7.96 inches against a normal of 13.80 inches. The St. Louis area received a heavier rainfall than in the Quad-Cities reporting 1.47 inches Tuesday night at Lambert Airport. Scott Air Force Base at Belleville reported 1.08 inches Tuesday night.

More rain is forecast today and tonight, with thunderstorms due to end Friday.

Braves in Hosts too hospitable road games in 10-2 Legion game

The Granite City Braves baseball nine will attempt to improve its Central Illinois Traveling League record (4-2) in a doubleheader contest at 1:15 p.m. Sunday at Godfrey.

Coach Norman Mahl feels the Godfrey squad "is perhaps the best team we have played this season."

Godfrey defeated the Braves earlier 6-3, outlasting steady pitching and good defense.

Mahl expresses confidence, however, in starter Tim Kirksey's fast ball and in relief hurler Tom Mahl. Kirksey is 1-2 for the season and Mahl 2-1 in relief.

Tri-City American Legion Post 113 dropped a 10-2 decision at home yesterday in Highland in a District 22 baseball league contest.

Another league contest scheduled yesterday between Glen Carbon Post 435 and Belleville was rained out at Belleville.

Tri-City's Legionnaires trailed 4-0 at the end of the first inning. The visitors had failed to collect a hit but coaxed seven walks.

Highland scored twice in the third, and Post 113 scored both in the fourth. Jeff Scarborough singled, Mike Clark walked and Randy Smith, Kirk Champion and Tom Heinrich all hit safely.

Highland tallied four times in the sixth.

An Illinois Inter-City Baseball League makeup contest between Mercer of Granite City and East Alton's Fairfax, which would have broken a three-way deadlock for first place in league standings, was rained out last night.

The contest had been rescheduled for yesterday when rain on May 30 forced its postponement.

Thomas of Granite City and Highland-Pierson are slated to play a makeup game at Wilson Park on Saturday at noon. That game also was postponed from May 30 due to rain.

Regular league competition resumes Sunday with doubleheaders on tap for the six participating teams, all 4-1 p.m. Mercer is at Panama, the Vans of East Alton visit Thomas at Wilson Park, and Highland-Pierson plays at Fairfax.

Mercer, Vans and the Highland squad all have 9-5 records, Fairfax is 8-6, Panama 6-6 and Thomas 1-13.

Post 435 achieves 8th league victory

Glen Carbon American Legion Post 435 gained its eighth District 32 baseball win of the season Tuesday, defeating visiting O'Fallon 7-3. Ruler Bill Dickerson went the distance.

Now with a 3-0 record, he allowed O'Fallon four hits and three runs in the fourth inning but then closed the door.

Post 435 collected eight hits and made two errors.

Glen Carbon scored six runs in the opening inning when Kevin Hayes drew a walk, Richard Schmidt singled, Brian Sikes reached on an error, Doug Raim and Ed Schmidt both singled, Matt McCullough walked and Dickerson singled.

In the fourth, Hayes reached on an error, went to second on a wild pitch, advanced on an infield out and scored on another wild pitch.

Glen Carbon's Legionnaires are on the road tonight for a 7:30 game with Pevely, Mo., and then host a Pine Lawn-Normandy team from Missouri at the GCHS North diamond at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

On Sunday, Post 435 and Tri-City Post 113 will meet at 2 p.m. on diamond one at Wilson Park.

2-hit shutout by Post 113's Lyerla

"Bandy Lyerla pitched a complete game shutout Tuesday, allowing Allen two hits in pitching Tri-City American Legion Post 113 to a 2-0 win over the host team.

Lyerla walked two batters in the game and yielded one hit in each of the first and fifth innings while Tri-City collected eight hits.

The Legionnaires, coached by Conrad "Babe" Champion, garnered two runs in the opening inning when Paul Muehl drew a walk and Johnny Pritchard homered.

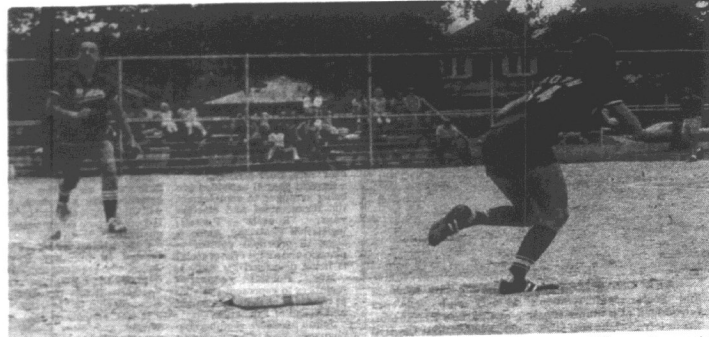

Another run scored in the fifth when Lyerla drew a walk, Tom Hennrich bunted safely, the runners advanced on a sacrifice fly and Pritchard reached base on an error.

Tri-City added four runs in the seventh. Hennrich walked, Keith Champion singled, a run scored on Pritchard's sacrifice fly, two runs later crossed the plate on Jeff Scarborough's triple and the final run came on a single by Larry Hayes.

Champion's team is on the road at O'Fallon at six o'clock today and at Belleville tomorrow at 8 p.m.

On Sunday, Tri-City hosts Glen Carbon Post 435 in a 2 p.m. contest at Wilson Park's diamond one.

BEATING THE THROW: Lynne Davis (left) collects a base hit during the weekend for Bill's Auto Body, reaching first base before Eva Horn of Kentucky

Fried Chicken can make the tag. Bill's won the opening contest of the women's softball regional tournament here 5-1 and later successfully defended its regional title.

ONE OF MANY HITS: Shannon Marmion (at bat) connects with the ball at Wilson Park during the Bill's Auto Body women's softball team victory over Kentucky Fried Chicken. Waiting in the wings is Dorothy Runk of Bill's who earlier blasted the contest's only home run. Empire Ray Hoffman stands behind Kentucky Catcher Donna Herman. Bill's win was a prelude to its second straight regional championship, advancing the Granite City Park District squad to the state finals at Monticello, Ill., July 21-25.

50-lap mid-season stock car race here; Wallace seeks 7th straight

Not since Wib Spalding of Ponton Beach drove his late model stock car to three consecutive track championship titles (1971-72-73) at Tri-City Speedway has a driver so nearly dominated the racing as has Missouri's Russ Wallace for the past two years.

Driving a bright red Chevrolet, sponsored by his family's business, OK Vacuum Sales of Kirkwood, Mo., the boyish faced Wallace—who sports a mod haircut—appeared on the local racing scene in 1973 at the age of 41.

A relative newcomer to dirt track racing, he has impressive credentials on asphalt speedways, having captured track titles at five different speedways in his home state.

The year 1973 saw Wallace try out Tri-City's half-mile dirt oval for the first time. A season of mishaps and disappointments followed.

One of his more notable mishaps, occurring during his first annual "Falstaff Mid-Summer Classic," a 50-lap championship race for late models. He led the event from the start but on the 26th lap crashed his race car, delaying the finish of the event until a week later. Clyde Lindemann, since retired, won the race.

In 1974, the pattern started to change as Wallace took the track championship on the asphalt at Lake Hill Speedway in Missouri and finished second to Missouri's Len Gittermeier in Tri-City's season point standings.

The combined effort also gave Wallace enough points for the Gateway Auto Racing Association's overall points crown.

Encouraged, Wallace went after the dirt title here last year, compiling enough points by capturing nine feature wins and placing among the top six in 17 other main events to capture the track title, and again claim GARA's combined points championship.

He is seeking his second straight track title here this year.

Wallace enters Saturday's fourth running of the 50-lap mid-season championship event with six straight feature race wins under his belt and 660 points more than his closest competitor, Bill Myers of East Alton, who has 1550 points, in the late model division standings.

Following preliminary racing events Saturday, beginning at 7:30 p.m., Wallace will occupy the front row of the 24-car field along with Myers to start the main event. Myers won the 50-lap last year.

Filling positions in rows two through 12 will be (with points earned thus far): C. C. Corbin of East Alton (1,320); and Mike Hammer of St. Charles, Mo. (1,375); Kevin Gundaker of St. Louis (1,170); and Norm Cox of Berkeley, Mo. (1,145); Ralph Knox of Elsberry (1,115) and Bill Laycock of Granite City (1,015).

Bobby Buzelli of St. Charles (620) and Jerry Sifford of Imperial, Mo. (600); Tom White of St. Louis (595) and Len Gittermeier of St. Louis (590); Billy Collins of Elsberry (515) and Johnny Prior of Centralia (450); Len Garson of St. Louis (385) and Rod Bailey of Granite City (380).

Charlie Munday of Collinsville (345) and Wib Spalding (345); Al Kiral Jr. of St. Louis (335) and Butch McCowen of Hardin (330); Don Carter of Hillsboro, Ill. (330) and Dan Pacevic of Belleville (325); Rob Jones of Creve Coeur (320) and Leroy Rotheimer of Millstadt (320).

Russ Wallace's son, Mike, will seek to maintain his sportsman division lead with a second straight feature race win.

The younger Wallace last week captured that division's 50-lap mid-season championship race on the quarter-mile track.

Texas Terry Poovey, 17, on Tuesday night became the fourth different rider to win a feature race this season during an American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned cycle program at Tri-City Speedway.

The youthful rider won his semi-main event to qualify for a starting position in the 12-lap feature.

He then passed leader Bill Labrie of Florida coming out of the fourth corner of the quarter-mile track on the last lap when Labrie's cycle snapped a drive chain.

Heat race victors were: Lance Jones of Alabama, 1st; Howard Knickenbacher of Florida, Steve Freeman of South Carolina, and Bubba Rush and Jim Rawls, both of Texas. Labrie, Rawls, Poovey and Rush captured their respective semi-main event races.

Rush placed second to Poovey in the feature followed by Doug Ahn of Collinsville, Greg Thompson of Belleville and Jerry Rouse of Oklahoma.

Business Women look toward 3rd Century

By VALERIE EYENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer

Programs and activities scheduled during the 1976-77 club year for Granite City Business and Professional Women will focus on the theme, "Through the Looking Glass Into the Third Century."

Details of planned events were reviewed at last week's dinner meeting at Charlie's Restaurant by officers and standing committee chairmen.

Unlike a fictional Alice who slipped through a looking glass into a fantasy world, filled with unrealistic characters and improbable adventures, the Business Women's group will be facing issues of a real world and confronted by problems concerning women in a world which is here and now. Mrs. Sylvia Wright, local BPW president, stated:

MRS. SYLVIA WRIGHT, new president of the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club (left) and Mrs. Lois Wetton, 1976-77 program planning chairman, explain the "Through the Looking Glass Into the Third Century" theme for the new club year at the June dinner meeting.

Maximum effort in such aspects as furthering education and developing the potential of women will be geared by the BPW toward the next decade and next century in programs at the international, national state and local levels. Mrs. Wright said:

Mrs. Lois Wetton, program planning chairman, outlined responsibilities of each member for her own growth and the growth of forces that can lead to a better community and better world.

NEW CHAIRMEN for the Granite City Business and Professional Women's 1976-77 club year are introduced at a dinner meeting at Charlie's Restaurant. From left to right are: Ruth Buer, Foundation; Carolyn Koester, Young Careerist; Judith McCann, membership; Lois Wetton, program planning; Betty Nugent, program; and Rosalie Portell, legislation. Billie Schuler, finance, and Betty Roberson, public relations, are not shown.

Highland and Edwardsville BPW clubs in an effort to get active programs established in each club, it was reported.

Betty Nugent, program chairman, said a BPW member must feel a responsibility to all women in the community, whether she is a homemaker, career woman, the pregnant woman, a woman prisoner, a woman in "transition" or the aging woman.

She asked each chairman to prepare a tentative criteria of her respective program plans for the coming year, emphasizing means of assisting women in solving problems, setting goals or meeting personal and family needs.

Insights into various positions in the business world and guidance in choosing a career, geared to talent and ability, will be offered to Quad-City high school students through the Career Awareness Program (CAP), a new project of the local BPW club.

Carolyn Koester, Young Careerist chairman, announced plans for the CAP project to aid high school age youth. She also asked that nominations be submitted early for candidates meeting the Young Careerist qualifications to compete locally and at the district level next spring.

A $200 scholarship is available through the BPW club to any working woman who meets the criteria set forth by the Foundation Committee and needs assistance in furthering her education to prepare for a career or job advancement.

Ruth Buer, Foundation chairman, reported.

A Career Advancement Scholarship, sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, also is offered to benefit a working woman, 25 years and over, Mrs. Buer advised.

Several special activities are being arranged to complement the Bicentennial and election year. Rosalie Portell, legislation chairman, said. A class in practical politics is planned and an ice cream social is being discussed for Aug. 1.

Mrs. Portell requested members to represent the club at meetings of the City Council and Board of Education.

Judith McCann, membership chairman, said two awards will be offered in 1976-77. A "Triple" award will be presented to those enrolling three new members, and a "Rising Star" award may be earned by a person recruiting three new members under the age of 28 years.

She also asked that recipes be submitted for a BPW Cookbook, scheduled for publication and sale before Christmas.

Mrs. McCann gave details of a "County Fair for Membership," set for July 21, when prizes will be given to members entering various items for judging. A covered dish dinner will be served and guests may be invited to attend at a cost of $1.50 each.

The best method of reporting the club's goals and objectives for the coming 12-month period was discussed by Betty Roberson, public relations officer, who encouraged chairmen to publicize their committees' projects throughout the year.

Continuing the BPW's quest for the new year club members agreed to accept responsibility for learning more about such subjects as rape and assault prevention, child care and child abuse and to closely follow changes needed in discrimination laws and ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment by all states.

Mrs. Wright introduced Elsie Elmore as the new corresponding secretary, who will fill the post vacated by Mrs. Roberson, now public relations chairman.

Congratulations were extended to member Regina Jones, who received a master's degree in education from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in May.

It was announced that Mrs. Wright and Miss Smith will serve as delegates, and Mrs. Verna Lengyel as alternate, at the National BPW convention in Denver, Colo., July 25 to July 29.

Special appointed chairmen presented to the assembly were: Pauline Weir and Clea Whitaker, Christmas party; Becky Slate, past presidents' night; Jackie Logan, International Business Women's Week; Edna Kohlbrecher, BPW Week; Lorene Sadrakula, yearbook; Ruth Walk, permanent reservations; Ollie Derr, prayer breakfast; Emylee Alford, Bicentennial Year; Gladys Newman, ways and means; and Deborah Jolly, cheer committee.

TO MARRY: Miss Rebecca Hagans and Philip Mehelic, whose engagement and plans for a summer wedding are being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hagans of Urick, Kan.

Mehelic-Hagans betrothal

The engagement of Miss Rebecca Hagans and Philip Mehelic, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mehelic of Madison, is being announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hagans of Urick, Kan. Miss Hagans attended Kansas State University and is presently employed by the Kansas Steel Supply Co. Manhattan, Kan.

The prospective groom received his master degree from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and is district office manager for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Manhattan. A mid-summer wedding is being planned by the engaged couple.

Kid's Crusade starts July 4

A Knights for Jesus' Kid's Crusade will start at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, July 4, at the City Park Tabernacle Church, Clark Avenue and Maryville Road.

The Rev. J. Albert Galaway, pastor, said a warm welcome is extended to all children to come and enjoy this crusade. After the morning opening program on July 4, the crusade will continue nightly through July 9 from 7 to 9:30.

Leaders will be Lucie Giese and Rusty Eberhardt of Washington state, who conducted a similar program at the local church a few years ago.

Sara Merkelbach wed in evening ceremony

Miss Sara Ruth Merkelbach of Springfield, Ill., formerly of Granite City and Phillip J. Alphin of Sherman, Ill., exchanged wedding vows in an evening ceremony on June 19 at the Christian Church in Williamsville, Ill.

Tall urns of yellow and white mums decorated the altar for the double ring ceremony performed at 7 o'clock by the Rev. Scotty Webster.

Parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Merkelbach, reside at 2625 East 27th St. The groom is a son of Mrs. Susan C. Alphin, 19 Queensway Drive, Sherman.

Honor attendant Sharon Garst and bridesmaid Elizabeth Slanko wore identical full length dresses created in a pastel floral pattern on beige background. Each wore beige picture hats and carried bouquets of painted daisies.

The groom chose John Schmidt as his best man. Bob Shirley served as groomsman and Mike Pavins and Bill Black seated the guests.

A reception was held at the Holiday Inn in Springfield immediately following the ceremony.

The newly married couple will be at home at 2229 South Whittier, Springfield after a wedding trip touring several southern states.

A graduate of Granite City High School and Illinois College, Jacksonville, the bride is now employed as a kindergarten teacher at Little People's Arts and Talent's Center, Springfield. She is a member of Chi Beta Literary Society.

The groom was graduated from Williamsville High School and Lincoln Land Community College. He is a member of the Young Democrats of Illinois and is employed by the state of Illinois.

ENGAGED. Miss Maryann Cann and Richard M. Symons of East St. Louis whose engagement is being announced by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Cann, 2033 Missouri Ave. A Sept. 4 wedding is planned.

Teachers attend conference

Meeting in Springfield, Ill. over the weekend, 10 members of Beta Eta Chapter of the Delta Gamma Society International (composed of women educators) participated in a State Leadership Development program for the next biennium.

Individual sessions were held for presidents, treasurers, and chairmen of the following committees: membership, professional affairs, publications and publicity, legislation, research, program and personal growth and services.

The all-day program, one of two for the state of Illinois, with the theme of "Commitment" attracted almost 400 teachers to the Forum Thirty.

Two area members served as directors at the meeting. Mrs. Valerie Stevens, state music chairman, directed the musical numbers at the luncheon program. Mrs. Josephine O'Neil of Edwardsville, state second vice-president, served as a consultant at one of the sessions.

Other chapter members attending were Mesdames Virginia Oram, Vivian Dine, Jean Hall, Nancy Barnett, Barbara Williams, Ona Glibreath, Bernice Brown, and Miss Martha Mass.

25 GC teachers rehired

The Granite City Board of Education Tuesday night rehired 25 of 61 first-year teachers who were honorably dismissed in March due to doubt over how many teachers would be required for the 1976-77 school year.

Members of the board noted more teachers will be rehired before school opening as the need arises and firm enrollment figures become available.

Teachers employed for the forthcoming term for one year only and effective Aug. 25 include Patricia Cooper, English at North High School; Mary Hamilton, science-North; Alvin Turner, industrial arts-South; Patricia Stamps, business education-South; Evelyn Fedora, counselor-Grigsby; Barry Schroeder, Wilson; Patricia Prosser, Noddinghaus.

Pamela Peters, Webster; Carla Burns, Wilson; Kimberly Harrison, Frohardt; Judith Ward, special education-North; Carla Ziff, special education-Cosledge; Deborah Milton, vocal music-Lake and Washington; Alice Murphy, Stallings.

Eleven teachers employed for the 1976-77 school year, placed on tenure effective Aug. 25 are Janet Davinroy, home economics-North; Betty Harmon, librarian-South; Lawrence Curry, Frohardt; Lynn Jacobmeyer, Frohardt; Peggy Ham, Logan; Alisa Gasparovic, McKinley; Sandra Peterson, Washington; Gail Cooper, Webster; Ron Simpson, Title I remedial reading-Prather; Lillian Phillips, Logan; Michael Loftus, Marshall.

The board approved hiring two temporary employees, Catherine Tripp at the board office and Norma Roney at South High School, and agreed to appoint Thomas Holloway, a teacher at Prather Junior High, to the position of department head for the junior high schools in industrial education. G. W. Brown, administrative assistant-personnel, was granted permission to accept new custodial applications from July 1 through July 9 at the board office. There is only one vacancy in the foreseeable future and the office currently is in the process of notifying all applicants of the need to renew their applications annually, according to Brown. He added applications for custodial employment have not been accepted since October of 1975, because of the long list of applicants on file.

In other board action, three campus monitors were re-employed for the 1976-77 school year with the recommendation that their salary of $7,500 be increased to $8,000 plus cost of living, which represents an approximate 7 percent increase above last year's base earnings. Those hired as campus monitors were Arthur Asadorian and Ricky Singleton, both for South High School, and Dennis Kunemann at North High School.

Board members also established salaries for seven non-union secretarial positions with a total increase of $5,150 to make the salary rate comparable to the union salaries for secretarial positions, and in accordance with classification of experience of the individual. The action will affect five persons employed at the board office and one each at both North and South High Schools.

Venice revenue sharing funds appropriated

A resolution providing for the appropriation of federal revenue sharing funds to be received July 1 through Dec. 31, in the amount of $57,960, was passed by the Venice City Council at its meeting Tuesday night.

The appropriations for operation and maintenance are:

Public safety basically police protection, $24,980; environmental protection, a summer work program for youths hired to cut weeds and clean up the city, $16,000; recreation, $6,000, to be given to the Park Board to help finance recreational programs of the board, particularly during the summer months; $10,500 for social services for aged which is used to help support the two Venice senior citizen programs.

and $500 for financial administration, to be used to pay for the audit of the federal revenue sharing funds and administrative costs in handling the funds.

Two Venice residents complained to the council about dust raised and noise caused by the large trucks using the 162nd back yards of the Illinois Central Gulf railroad in the 700 block of Kerr Street.

One woman alleged that the trucks are parked anywhere the drivers want including no-parking zones. Another resident stated that when she called attention to the no-parking sign, one of the truck drivers laughed and said, "What sign."

Mayor William Ebersold said, "I will check with the railroad people in the morning about the dust problems and instruct the police to issue tickets to anyone parking illegally."

In other action the council approved a building permit of Calv Leonard, 413 Weaver St., for a room addition costing $2,000, and authorized Chief of Police Ralph D. Brawley to attend a police chiefs conference at Peoria, Ill., July 17, 18 and 19.

In a McKinley Toll bridge traffic report submitted by Duane Georgeff, bridge manager, the average daily total of vehicles crossing in May totaled 8,375, or 172 vehicles more than last month and 1,253 more than in May 1975.

A question was raised that some people on motorcycles are "joy riding" and making illegal turns near the underpass. Mayor Ebersold instructed police to increase patrol of the area and make arrests if necessary to stop the practice.

First aid workshop is scheduled in Madison

A first aid workshop sponsored by the Madison Emergency Service and Disaster Agency (ESDA), formerly Civil Defense, will be held Saturday, July 10, from noon until 4 p.m., and on Thursday, July 15, from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m.

The training session will be held in the Madison Recreation Center, Seventh and Lee Streets, Madison.

According to Casimir Krakowicki, ESDA director for Madison, areas to be covered include mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and the Heimlich maneuver to prevent choking.

Instruction will be provided by St. Elizabeth Hospital Trauma Center and the EMT Ambulance Services personnel who are donating their time.

Class size will be limited to the first 25 who enroll for either date by telephoning 876-6288.

According to Krakowicki, the programs will be especially good for school personnel, restaurant owners and employees, Boy and Girl Scout leaders.

"This training will be worthwhile for anyone who would like to know what to do in case of emergencies involving heart failure due to drowning, shock, heart arrest and choking," Krakowicki said.

"Sometimes when we least suspect, an emergency may arise when our knowledge of first aid and quick and effective response could save a life. To stand by and watch a child or adult choke could be even a worse tragedy, when the technique to save a life is so easily learned, and 1,000 people will take advantage of this opportunity," he added.

GC Scout leader at National Scout ranch

James L. Graham, 627 Fleming St., is currently participating in the volunteer training program at Philmont Scout Ranch in the Rocky Mountains of northeastern New Mexico.

Graham is enrolled in the Scout Advancement Conference which is part of a national training program organized by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the Philmont Training Center.

Graham serves as a Cubmaster of Pack 124 in the Chokoma Mount Scout Council which coordinates Scouting for young people in the area.

The conference attended by Graham is one of nine that are offered to about 1,500 volunteer Scout leaders this summer.

Graham, his wife, Henrietta, and family are also at Philmont and participate in a full program of activities offered for all age groups.

The summer of 1976 marks the 26th season for the Philmont Training Center.

Military jets also part of supersonic issue

Conservation News—One outgrowth of the current SST (supersonic transport) controversy has been to raise questions concerning the environmental impact of supersonic military jets.

With the exception of the ongoing campaign by a coalition of different groups to ban a new jet, the B-1 bomber, for a variety of environmental and economic reasons, little public attention has centered on the environmental effects of military supersonic aircraft.

Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman, Jr. is defending his decision to allow the British and French commercial SST, the Concorde, entry into the U.S. on a trial basis, has noted that military jets have been flying in the stratosphere at supersonic speeds for years, with no noticeable deterioration of the ozone layer.

Michael LaForce, director of the Concorde program for the French government, has stated that if the ozone theory is right, then the impact of Concorde would be microscopic.

Both commercial and military supersonic jets pollute the air, produce high levels of noise, guzzle precious gallons of gasoline, and threaten to deplete the earth's protective ozone layer.

While the potential effects on the environment of commercial and military supersonic jets are similar, a host of complicating factors blur the comparison and tend to raise further questions.

A commercial fleet of SST's would eventually be flying supersonically on a regular, around-the-clock basis.

In contrast, their military counterparts are scheduled to fly supersonically through the stratosphere on only a very limited basis, thus minimizing their detrimental effects on the environment.

For example, the Air Force's report on the B-1 bomber maintains that sonic boom exposure and atmospheric modifications are expected to be held to "small levels" due to its limited use at supersonic speeds.

However, just how limited its supersonic flight would be is a point of contention.

Using the same data, the opponents of the B-1 bomber come up with different estimates of supersonic flight time.

It becomes high impossible to estimate the environmental impact of supersonic flight without such data on all supersonic jets. Such raw data, at least in uncontested form, are not readily available.

The commercial-military SST debate raises the question of "trade-offs" between the goals of environmental protection and the strengthening of the national defense.

The Department of the Air Force, according to its report, sees the development of the B-1 bomber as necessarily a compromise between these two goals of national policy.

According to the Air Force, the B-1 bomber "has been designated as an extremely versatile aircraft capable of performing in hostile environments with a high degree of safety and mission success probability. It is perceived by its proponents as a great strategic advance.

Its critics claim that it will not perform up to specifications and that its high cost makes it impractical.

The incorporation of the military jets into the SST controversy has not made the debate an easier one. It has, however, broadened the discussion of the environmental impact of supersonic travel to its true dimensions.

Camp Sunnen receives top national rating

Camp Sunnen near Potomac, Md., operated by the Catholic Mount Seaside Council, received an A rating in a camp inspection Tuesday.

James Chaske, Kansas City, Mo., a member of the North Central Regional committee, made the inspection Tuesday.

Members of the local council, a camping committee making the inspection with Chaske were: Reginald Menninger, camping chairman; G. Budin; Joseph, chairman; Bill Miller; W. Jean Grunwald; Dwight Smith; E. H. Wiese; and William, Missouri, Scout executive.

Ned Freeman is camp director and Randy Affolter is the program director at the camp. Both are from Granite City.

Sonnen opened in 1963 and has consistently received national recognition and A ratings. It has been used as a model camp by the National Council BSA camping service.

Three Granite City youths were selected by the depart- ment directors at the camp to spend an additional two weeks in a counselor-in-training program. The three Scouts are: Jack Taylor, the boys attended junior leader training at camp two weeks ago and were campers last week. The organization is open to every Democrat in the area, regardless of age. It provides a forum for those occupying or seeking public office to meet the voters and to answer their questions. It fills a void for those interested in politics but not aspiring to public office to get together and socialize, he said.

He invited every precinct committeeman who is not yet a member to join and work together with the Democratic Club to form a strong Democratic coalition in Granite City for the purpose of supporting the Democratic candidates and winning the November election.

The precinct committeemen were invited guests and President Kay Harrison offered the services of the group to the precinct committeemen, if needed, for the Fourth of July undertaking. The women, in turn, received the volunteer services of the men to help prepare the float they plan to enter in the Bicentennial parade on July 3.

Demos to join celebration

The Granite City Democratic Committee will participate in the Park District's Fourth of July Bicentennial celebration by reserving an area to operate a dunking machine, it was reported this week.

Several standing committee chairmen, Dorothy Vaughn, program; Andy Timko, ways and means; and Elise Mayhew, publicity, were asked to work on the project along with committee members.

At the conclusion of the June monthly meeting, Von Der Cope, Granite City township tax assessor, was introduced as guest speaker.

He gave a brief history of Democratic organizations which have existed off and on in Granite City during the 25 years he has been in politics.

His talk centered around the newly organized Granite City Democratic Club which meets the second Wednesday of each month at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Valuation decrease boosts school tax rate in Venice

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer
Loss of $2,403,177 in assessed valuations, criticism of claims procedures at Venice-Lincoln Technical Center and proposed payment of teachers' salaries

on a year-around bi-weekly basis were topics occupying the Venice Board of Education at its meeting Monday night.
A tax rate of $3.467, an increase of 79.3 cents, was reported to the board by Miss

Evelyn M. Bowles, Madison County clerk, to be levied against an assessed valuation of $29,453,866. The rate is subject to minor corrections.
Taxes totaling $82,150 were collected last year (about 90 per cent) on an assessed valuation of $31,916,043, based on a rate of $2.764.

An increase of 60 cents in the educational fund tax rate was authorized by Venice School District voters in a tax referendum Dec. 22, 1975. The remaining 10 cent tax increase is taken up in raises in the retirement and transportation funds.

Breakdown of the funds, amount levied and rate for collection this year is listed in sequence as follows:

Education, $845,775, 11.65;
operations, building and maintenance, $119,685, 37 1/2 cents; transportation, $39,299, 12 cents; working cash, $15,958,
35 of 1 cent.

5 cents; retirement, $23,397, 8.29 cents; fire prevention and safety, $15,958, 5 cents; bonds and interest, $39,025, 13 1/2 cents and liability insurance, $1,000, 35 of 1 cent.

board member, commented,
"Maybe Rankin doesn't know what is going on when he is absent. We should tell him and we should also say if they (office staff) are not doing the job, they shouldn't be there."

Bills were approved for payment after tax money is received, with exception of a $446 payment to Delmar G. Bast (Hank's Oil Products) for gasoline for buses. Payment was withheld until gas deliveries are verified.

The board discussed changing the Venice School District's procedure of paying teachers a lump sum in June to cover salaries remaining until the next school term begins.

"It is becoming increasingly harder to meet three months pay in June," Supl. Vickers said. "As our financial situation gets harder, it seems it would be easier to pay every two weeks throughout the summer, rather than a lump sum in June," the administrator said.

Approval was given to submit applications for reimbursement of $100 per student-participant in a Consumer Education and Family Living Project to be sponsored by the Venice High School home economics department next year.

Also approved was use of the Venice School cafeteria at lunchtime for the children's summer recreation program, with the cost of staff and other expenses to be paid through the EOC's Head Start program.

Resolutions adopted transferred sums of money into the education fund to meet tomorrow's payroll obligation.
The amounts included:
$134,900 from education to working cash (reimbursement); $135,000 back to education from working cash; $5,000 from working cash (passbook savings) to education; $15,000 from Venice-Lincoln Technical Center to education
(reimbursement); 39 cents from Title II (balance) to education; and $7,500 from education to building fund, also to meet employees' payroll.

Illinois grain volume said to require efficient river system

By ALBERT MEYER
Southern Illinois
University at Carbondale

Proposals by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to replace lock and dam 26 in the Mississippi River near Alton with a modern, larger structure to handle increasing river barge traffic has prompted a hornet's nest of controversy among various groups the last year or so.

Exerting strong pressure against the improvement are railroads and some environmental groups.

With the proponents are some farm groups, coal mining interests and other shippers of bulky commodities concerned about low per-unit transportation costs.

Walter Wills, farm marketing specialist in the SUC School of Agriculture, says waterways are an essential part of the grain marketing and transportation system for Illinois and other major grain producing states, such as Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri.

Large volumes of grain, especially Illinois corn and soybeans, move to shipping ports on the Gulf of Mexico and, to a lesser extent, markets in the southeastern United States on river systems.

The waterways also provide an important mode of transportation for coal, oil, fertilizers and other bulky commodities, he says.

Wills points to the Alton dam as an important part of this river system. Traffic on it is channeled barge traffic from the upper Mississippi, the Illinois and the Missouri rivers. It has been used heavily for years and needs substantial repairs, Wills says.

This importance was illustrated this spring when the main lock was closed for a period to repair structural damage, causing a costly, twofold backup of tons waiting turns to go through a smaller auxiliary lock.

Grain going down river to markets, especially for export, accounts for about half of the river tonnage annually moving through lock and dam 26, Wills says.

Of the 52.9 million tons of commodities moving through the facility in 1974, 26.3 million tons were grain and 7.5 million tons were petroleum products.

The 54 million tons through the facility last year included 13.5 million tons of grain and 7.4 million tons of petroleum. To move that much grain by rail would require 265,000 hopper cars of 100-ton capacity.

Wills says most persons connected with the grain business admit a shortage of transportation available for moving grain during several months of the year.

They then question if state and national government agencies and legislators are responsibly meeting their obligations to farmers and consumers in not more aggressively carrying out mandates of law to develop efficient transportation facilities and services, including transportation by truck, rail and water.

Several factors have contributed to the economic development of the United States to the point where it occupies a world leadership position in its Biscuit industry, Wills says. One important factor is the vast, rich agricultural areas largely owned and operated by hard working, innovative and imaginative farmers.

The only way the fruits of their labor can be enjoyed by the nonagricultural sector of the nation and other people of the world is through an efficient, effective transportation system for distribution.

Most agricultural products are bulky, have relatively low value per unit of weight, and require a certain amount of protection or special handling to maintain quality.

Calls for all-out agricultural production suggest that farmers and consumers have a right to expect a morally responsible government to foster an efficient transportation system that will minimize grain loss and damage and help the farmers achieve maximum production, Wills concludes.

Electronics add to bomb hazard

Police and reporters working near two live bombs found in the 2800 block of Harding Boulevard Friday morning had more to fear than timing devices setting off the dynamite in each bomb—but did not know it at the time. Two bombs, each containing four sticks of dynamite, a blasting cap, a battery and a kitchen timer, were found in a car parked in a parking lot.

The experts later informed the police that blasting caps can be set off by two-way radios, the electronic shutters of cameras or electronic flash units.

Police were using their two-way radios near the live bombs for nearly two hours and newspaper cameras took photos of one live bomb at close range. Had the blasting cap exploded, the dynamite also would have exploded, the officials commented.

Chief of Police Ronald Veizer said if any bombs should be found here in the future, precautions will be taken to keep cameras and flash units out of the vicinity and to halt the use of police and other two-way radios until the bombs are dismantled.

The board agreed to accept a guaranteed price of $100,943 with an additional cost of from 15 per cent to 24 per cent allowed by state regulations for workmen's compensation insurance from Allied Insurance Co., a subsidiary of Insurance Company of North America.

Tully A. Heubner, director of business affairs, was instructed to forward $50,000 to the insurance company before July 1, as the initial premium for coverage, as the Home Insurance Co. has cancelled the Workmen's Compensation policy with the district effective July 1. The remaining premiums will be paid in two separate payments, the board agreed.

Contracts were awarded on the basis of low bid to Kelly Plumbing Co. for pipe replacement under the canopy at South High School cafeteria building at a total cost of $4,269.

Other bids were from Amco Plumbing and Heating for $6,645 and Grove Plumbing and Heating for $10,555.

Sproff Heating and Cooling, Inc., was awarded a contract to replace all gutters and downspouts at Webster School for $1,211. Other bids were from Morris Heating Inc. (Triangle Heating Co.) for $1,374 and Westchester Sheet Metal Co. for $1,379.

Grove Plumbing and Heating was low bidder at $6,100 to install showers at South High School gymnasium and circular wash fountains at South. Other bids were from Morris Heating, Inc. for $6,548; Amco Plumbing for $8,224; and Kelly Plumbing for $9,922.

Grove Plumbing and Heating also received the contract for gas pipe replacement at Prather Junior High School for $2,200. Bids also were received from Morris Heating Inc. for $1,041 and Amco Plumbing and Heating for $1,027.

Other contracts were awarded to W. B. McCloud and Co. for high-pressure aerosol insect killer; United Disposal Division for disposal service at Mitchell and Stallings Schools, in the amount of $157; Morgan Linen Service for laundry service; Valley Farm Dairy, St. Louis, for ice cream; Colonial Bath to serve both high schools and Dolly Madison to provide Coolidge, Grigsby and Prather Junior High Schools.

School Board honors Macios

Carl Macios, a former member of the Granite City Board of Education who served more than nine years, was accorded special honors at a School Board meeting Tuesday night and was presented with a plaque in appreciation of his years of service.

The presentation was made on behalf of the board members by President Tom Miofsky.

Macios declined to run for reelection to the board in the April election due to other commitments. Also attending the ceremony was his wife, Mrs. Jo Ann Macios.

The board agreed to accept a guaranteed price of $100,943 with an additional cost of from 15 per cent to 24 per cent allowed by state regulations for workmen's compensation insurance from Allied Insurance Co., a subsidiary of Insurance Company of North America.

GC council to change meetings

No specific reason for the proposed change was given, although there were reports from some sources that other events on Monday night conflict with the council sessions.

The aldermen Monday night approved a motion by Alderman Clyde Boyd of the Third Ward to instruct the city attorney to prepare an ordinance that would revise the council's meeting program.

Under the motion, the council would meet on the first, third and fourth Tuesdays of each month instead of the first, third and fourth Mondays now designated as official meeting nights.

The ordinance also will change the meeting nights of the Town Board from the first and third Tuesdays. The Town Board is made up of City Council members. Township meetings are held just prior to the regular council meetings twice monthly.

It is not the first time the City Council has changed meeting arrangements. Granite City's first council met only on the first Tuesday of each month from 1895 until 1901 when it decided to meet on the first and third Tuesday of each month.

The program continued for two years. In 1903 the council members changed meeting dates to the second and fourth Saturdays of each month. Six years later, in 1909, the council switched back to Tuesday nights and met on the first, second, third and fourth Mondays of each month.

In 1925, meeting nights were changed again, this time to the first, second, third and fourth Mondays of each month.

That lasted four years, with the meetings changed to the first and third Mondays of each month beginning in 1929.

The council changed to its present pattern of first, third and fourth Mondays in 1961, and has continued under that arrangement until this week's session, when it changed from Mondays to Tuesdays.

Education board gets 16th member

Marcelino Miyares 'of Evanston, an advertising and research executive and former educator, has been confirmed as a member of the State Board of Education. The Illinois Senate approved Miyares' appointment to the board, making him the 16th member.

One vacancy remains. The board is responsible for setting educational policies and guidelines for pre-school through the twelfth grade. Members include Mrs. Gertrude Monroe of Collinsville.

Miyares will take his seat on the board at its scheduled meeting in Springfield today. At that time, he will draw to determine whether his term will expire next January or in 1981.

Miyares, 38, is president of a marketing research and advertising firm serving the Spanish-speaking community. He was chairman of the political science department at Illinois Benedictine College, U.S. Navy, a law degree from Illinois University of Chicago, a master's degree from Georgetown University. He and his wife have four children.

AUTO IS STOLEN
The auto of Virgil Calvin Jr., Florissant, Mo., was stolen from the parking lot of K-Mart the owner discovered at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. The car is a 1973 black vinyl over green Chevrolet Monte-Carlo and there was a .22 caliber revolver in the trunk.

Cheryl Chapman becomes Mrs. Michael Hauptman

Miss Cheryl Joan Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Chapman, 2537 Center St., and Michael Henry Hauptman of Buxton, Ill., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Hauptman, 3000 Center St., were married in a 6:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony at Third Baptist Church, June 13.

The Rev. Ray Johnson performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar centered with a brass altar cloth and decorated with wedding bells and lilies of the valley. Large white floral arrangements stood on brass pedestals on either side. Burning tapers in brass standards decorated with large bows and lilies of the valley marked the pews.

Serving as candlelighters were Miss Colleen Fitzgerald and Mrs. Diana Humak.

Mrs. Karen Olson and the Rev. John Nading sang "Time in a Bottle," "Surrender, Surrender," "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer" accompanied by the organist, Miss Cheryl Harper, who also played "Tara's Theme" during the processional.

Miss Debbie Calvert recited love sonnets to the accompaniment of "Theme from Romeo and Juliet" and "Green Leaves."

The bride's father escorted his daughter down the white-carpeted aisle and gave her in marriage. He chose an ivory silk chiffon gown designed with an Empire bodice featuring an English net yoke outlined with reemphasized Brussels lace etched with pearls and centered with a rose.

Bejeweled floral motifs accented the high neckline and long full shepherdess sleeves, with wide French cuffs banded on beaded lace with ruffles over the hands. A deep ruffled flounce, topped with Brussels lace marked the hem of the full-flowing skirt which formed a chapel train.

She wore a Renaissance caplet designed to match her train of re-embroidered Brussels lace embellished with pearls to secure her full-length mantilla veil of silk illusion, and she carried a large bouquet of white roses, gardenias and baby breath with ivory ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids wore identical frocks of chiffon over tulle. The natural waistlines were of re-embroidered Brussels ribbon sashes centered with a rose. The bodices featured triple cape collars with ruffled sleeves, and the skirts were long and flared.

Mrs. Vickie Kayser, matron of honor and bridesmaid, appeared in mint green with Mrs. Dina Hall and Mrs. Joann Green in petal pink. Each attendant wore a crown of fresh flowers in their hair and held colonial bouquets of pink roses, green daisies and baby breath with pink streamers.

The flower girl, Shelia Hauptman, a sister of the groom, was dressed in a long ivory chiffon dress trimmed with pink embroidery and pink ribbon. She carried a natural color wicker basket of daisies and baby breath.

Ben Lapaniski attended the groom as best man. Jerry Webb, brother-in-law of the groom, David Whitecotton, Robert Kretzschmar, Douglas Hommert and Richard Kayser completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

Joan Hauptman, sister of the groom, and Carolyn Legate distributed wedding scrolls and rice to the guests.

Miss Irene Hauptman, another sister of the groom, presided at the guest book at a reception immediately following the ceremony at the church fellowship hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Hauptman, parents of the groom, hosted the rehearsal dinner. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Chapman selected a long gown of pink Quince nylon, designed with a beaded wedding ring collar and a wide midriff covered with pink pearls and single heads. She wore matching accessories.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Hauptman, was attired in a long sea green knit gown featuring a lace bodice and a long matching lace coat. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations with pink rose bud centers.

America's past, present, future — 'human age' is forecast for 2076

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles celebrating the Bicentennial. Each week describes a separate aspect of American life, as it stands 200 years ago, as it stands today and as it is likely to look in 2076, as envisioned by specialists in that particular field. This article deals with government and the economy.

By ROBERT BETTS

Inflation nearly doubled the United States at birth. Prices were outrageous. A pair of shoes in Virginia cost $200, a suit of clothing nearly $1,000. Even George Washington had to borrow $100 to get to New York for his inauguration.

The gravest subject confronting Congress was the Revolutionary debt. The war had cost $130 million. The national debt, foreign and domestic, stood at $66 million. Adding the war debts incurred by the states gave a grand total of $81 million.

"What are we to do with this heavy debt?" Washington asked.

Alexander Hamilton, the new nation's first secretary of the treasury, found a way. Outstanding debts were assumed by the federal government and funded at face value. This meant issuing 6 percent bonds, payable at face value, in exchange for various securities and certificates of indebtedness which had survived the war.

Tonnage dues were charged on all foreign ships entering U.S. ports, plus duties ranging from 5 to 50 percent on most imports. Excise taxes were imposed on various internal commodities first on whisky, later on other liquors, sugar refining, stuffs, carriages and auction sales.

A national bank, established in 1791, made capital available for development of natural resources and industry. A mint, founded in 1792, gave the nation a uniform currency. Confidence in U.S. credit took an upturn.

Washington's government spent a little more than $5 million in fiscal 1792. There were only 350 government employees. Average annual receipts from 1789 to 1800 totaled $5,717,000, against an average expenditure of $2,716,000. During the following decade the Treasury recorded a surplus.

Could the Founding Fathers have envisioned the gigantic U.S. government of today, with nearly three million civil servants and more than 50 separate agencies?

Several experts foresee a war, to develop natural resources and provide a diversity of public services for a population 50 times bigger than it was in colonial times, have transformed the economy.

What would Washington have thought of the 1977 budget of $294.2 billion? And what would he have thought of taxes on personal and corporate incomes, gifts, inheritances and excess profits? Such means of raising revenue, commonly accepted today, were not in existence in his day.

The federal government now collects more than $100 billion in individual income taxes as part of the total revenue of around $300 billion. Government spending, federal and state, represents almost 40 percent of the trillion-dollar gross national product.

Several experts foresee a future of recurrent shortages and decreasing abundance.

"We are going to be confronted continually with choices between higher prices and shortages," predicted Herbert Stein, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors and now professor of economics at the University of Virginia.

Others, like Charles J. Hitch, president of Resources for the Future Inc., a Washington, D.C., research organization, believe that future resources will be more than adequate if the nation is willing to pay their true social, economic and environmental costs.

A similar opinion is held by Jerry Glenn, director of the Future Options Room, an independent consulting firm also based in Washington. "Quality energy resources already exist to provide for the increased population of 2076," he said, adding, "It is merely a question of ethics and price."

Glenn sees Americans in 2076 living in what he calls "a human age," in which wealth will be measured in terms of information rather than material goods — a triumph of "brains over brawn."

The word to success in 2076, he says, will be "access" — to goods, information and services.

He expects living standards to go much higher, with most Americans having access to $60,000-$100,000 (in 1976 value) by 2076. High automation will eliminate the need for cash, he believes.

"In 2076 you will be able to go shopping without leaving your home," he said. "Using a telephone-TV hookup, you may dial into a store and a question will appear on your screen — are you interested in clothing? Hardware? You simply depress digits on the phone with the key numbers of your interests. For clothing, a configuration of your body type will appear, showing the outfit on your model. Any question you may have is typed out, using key digits on the phone. When you've made your selection, you pay for them using your voice as identification and your Social Security number. The computer will check you out. You will receive monthly statements and may arrange to have money automatically withdrawn from your bank account.

"In 2076 there also will be libraries for items such as clothing as well as art works, allowing you to wear a different outfit every day or change your wardrobe weekly. This system, too, will be automated."

As for the government of 2076, Glenn predicts a worldwide governing organization — a system made up of multinational corporations, individual national corporations, individual national states and the United Nations agencies. Justice will be meted out by a world court, with judges selected by those three groups, says Glenn.

He believes judges of 2076 will practice what he calls "anticipatory law," rather than case histories. The emphasis will be on situational forecasting of legal procedures.

Glenn sees a variety of ways to turn government into a profit-making industry. For example, waste treatment plans using solar energy could produce algae and shellfish. Excess wastes could thus be converted into clean water plus food, thereby paying for itself and allowing the government to reduce taxes.

Glenn believes personal income taxes will be obsolete by 2076. The tax of 2076 will be on the machine rather than the individual, he said.

Dream of conquest of all disease may be moving nearer to reality

All diseases may be more means to be prevented or cured, not something that of old age and our lives lengthened at pleasure even beyond the antediluvian standard.

Benjamin Franklin made that prediction 200 years ago.

In his day, the science of medicine and treatment of disease was a blend of ignorance, superstition and knowledge and superstition.

Leads treatment, with plants, herbs and word prescriptions. The rule for the majority in some places physicians on their horseback rounds delivered drugs, poisons and ointments, but the sight of a doctor in the countryside was rare.

Infections and epidemics were common. Smallpox, bubonic plague, yellow fever and malaria took many lives. Infant mortality was high. The newborn had an even chance to survive a few days, the better chance to reach maturity.

Only the largest cities had any kind of hospital service. Some smaller communities provided for patients in religious or municipal institutions, usually almshouses. There also were a few specialized centers like the pesthouses and mariners or isolation hospitals in seaports for treating sick sailors and immigrants.

From the tiny nucleus of those times, the American hospital service has grown into a vast system of more than 1,000 institutions with a total capacity of 14 million beds. Some 33 million patients and 178 million outpatient visits are treated annually. Medicines are dispensed from 30,000 pharmacies.

The health industry employs 4 million people, including more than 370,000 physicians and nearly 748,000 nurses. Franklin's dream is much closer to reality today. Many diseases that were certain killers in his time virtually have been eliminated. Modern medicine, drugs, sophisticated equipment and ingenious surgical techniques are saving and prolonging life, alleviating pain, giving new parts to human bodies. Average human life span has advanced from 37 in the 1700s to over 70 today.

The great advances have come at a price. As a nation we spend close to $113 billion a year for health care, about $30 for every man, woman and child. The outlay represents 8 percent of the nation's total spending for goods and services. The average American works one month of the year to pay the medical bills.

The proliferation of medical knowledge has led to 20 recognized specialties. Physicians' fees alone now are costing Americans $20 billion a year. The rate at which they are increasing is second only to hospital charges, which account for the biggest chunk of the nation's health bill — 40 percent.

Health care is one of the most heavily subsidized in the country. In one way or another, it receives more than 10 percent of the entire federal budget. Close to one-third of all health spending comes from federal funds, including 70 percent of outlays for biomedical research, 40 percent of the cost of training doctors and 25 percent of payments for health services and supplies.

Because most younger people, who make up 75 percent of the population, have some kind of health insurance and virtually all the elderly are protected, mainly by Medicare, only about a third of the annual bill is paid directly by individuals as an out-of-pocket expense.

What will be the future direction of medicine? Dr. Charles J. Berry, president of the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston, former chief of medical programs at NASA's Johnson Spacecraft Center and Director for Life Sciences for all of NASA, predicts "a real renaissance."

Over the next 100 years, thanks to increased medical knowledge, technology and social action.

Dr. Berry believes that by the end of the nation's third century, Americans will be living into their hundreds, with social action removing many of the environmental hazards and medical science finding answers to many diseases like cancer and heart disease.

He sees many other breakthroughs in medicine during the next 100 years, including the use of living tissue replacements.

There also will be artificial organs developed in this time period. "I firmly feel that there will be an efficient, portable, developed technology will advance to the point where we'll be able to have a lot of artificial organs," Dr. Berry says.

He feels this increased life span also will affect the way we look at old people in society.

"We tend to think of aging today as being automatically associated with heart disease, high blood pressure and all that sort of thing. That's not necessarily so at all. These things can be controlled."

"We're going to learn a great deal more about the aging process as we continue to whittle away at the things that tend to help age us," he says.

The entire practice of medicine is being revolutionized because of the continuing changes in technology. The space technology Dr. Berry noted while he was the astronaut physician will become a commonplace occurrence in the next century.

"Medicine practiced by a doctor in one place consulting with patients in front of TV cameras may become a reality. This is coming as a direct result of some of the things I did in trying to look at a man 240,000 miles away on the surface of the moon. I had to evaluate, diagnose and treat him at that distance," Dr. Berry says.

With the use of this technology as we come into the next 100 years, the physician is going to get some time to utilize all sorts of tools — such as computers, TV and the transmission of electrocardiograms," Dr. Berry pointed out. "Thus he will be able to make much more intelligent, educated and scientific decisions as to diagnosis, and treatment will come much more rapidly."

Dr. Berry says that by maintaining the all-important human contact, the use of these machines during the next 100 years will make the health of Americans much better and will help bring about the renaissance in medicine.

Children a financial asset in 1776; next century will be severe test of family life

George Washington was one of four children — a small family by the standards of 200 years ago.

Thomas Jefferson was one of seven, which was the average family size. Patrick Henry came from a family of 11 children. Benjamin Franklin was the 15th of 17 and Nathan Hale was the sixth of 12 sons, all of whom served in the Revolution.

At a time when labor was scarce, children were an economic asset. Nine of 10 families lived off the land, on farms or small holdings, and children had to do their share of the work. Even in towns, the selling and sharing of goods and services regulated a family's existence. Craftsmen, now nonexistent, customarily put all the family to work in their businesses.

Marriage itself was as much a practical arrangement as it was a love match. The woman gave her services as housewife, bedfellow and mother in return for which the breadwinner provided sustenance and protection. Upper level families with marriageable daughters were expected to pay a dowry. When Benjamin Franklin was refused a dowry of 100 pounds to marry the daughter of his Philadelphia landlady, he broke off the affair.

The first U.S. population census was taken in 1790. The figure then was just short of four million. Average human life span was 37 years.

Today the population is near 213 million and life expectancy has increased to 70 or more. There is growing concern about overpopulation. Life-styles have changed, along with sex and marriage, and the traditional concept of family is being challenged on many fronts. The old-time farm or producing family as an economic unit — the "extended family" as modern sociologists call it — has almost disappeared. Dependence on the family for economic security largely is a thing of the past.

Today, when the bulk of the population is urban, most production of goods and services is not by the family as a unit but by individuals working away from home in office or factory. An extra child tends to be regarded more as an economic liability than an asset.

About 40 percent of American wives now are wage-earning workers. One out of every three mothers of children under six is working at an outside job. More women comprise about 60 percent of the more than three million total female labor force.

The average American family now consists of mother, father and two children, the so-called "nuclear family." It is not small enough to avert future famine, in the view of the population control pro-

Couples today are bombarded by public and private warnings against overpopulation.

Birth control, a subject that no early American would have dared mention in public, is now an $8 billion industry. The federal government spends more than $200 million a year on family planning and population research. Family planning services, provided either by public or voluntary institutions, now exist in more than 1,200 countries.

The wider availability of information on family planning, the accessibility and effectiveness of contraceptives and easier resort to abortion have contributed to a decline in unwanted and unplanned births.

With the widespread acceptance of birth control, sex increasingly is divorced from reproduction. This trend is likely to continue as the accessibility and effectiveness of contraceptives and easier resort to abortion have contributed to a decline in unwanted and unplanned births.

What possibilities will the child she carries mean for American moral values is a matter of debate. Some people believe the breakdown of traditional standards will accelerate and that the days of the family as it had been known for centuries are numbered.

Already, one out of three American marriages ends in divorce. Cohabitation without marriage is both more common and open than ever before, and illegitimate births in the United States have risen to 300,000 a year.

Looking at the wider variety of options that have become acceptable, most futurists expect the American family, if it exists at all, to have undergone an even more radical change by the next century. The threat of overpopulation has led some to suggest that a couple of the future may need a special permit to have children. A group of American scientists, in a research sponsored by the American Academy of Arts and Sciences with the support of the Carnegie Corp., predicted the "decline of the family and of women's place in the home except for those couples designated to breed children."

Willard Johnson, past chairman of Zero Population Growth, believes "most children will be born to several mothers and fathers and will like this arrangement because it will eliminate many cat-and-dog fight marriages. More wives will work outside the home, so there will be numerous arrangements for most children."

Robert M. Rice, director of Policy Analysis and Research for the Family Service Association of America, said he was not sure that a solid family could be maintained about the state of the family in 2076. But he feels the nation is now entering a particularly critical period.

"Our current indicators of disturbance in family life are alarming and rapid rise in family deterioration," he said. "Other indicators show that the family continues to be a central and viable institution in the United States. These indicators, when put together, we feel a need for renewed attention to the family — which includes the strengthening of family relationships — on the part of organizations and government."

Port facility bills could

Two bills essential to construction of a $2.75 billion bulk handling facility at the Tri-City Regional Port passed the Illinois House of Representatives Monday afternoon and now need only Gov. Dan Walker's signature to become law.

One bill amends the bylaws of the Illinois Capital Development Board and the other amends an agreement between the local port district and Shawneetown, Ill., port district with the Capital Development Board, reducing the amount the port districts will repay the development board each year for money advanced for construction of bulk handling facilities.

Due to a misunderstanding in the first agreement, the port districts would have had to pay the Capital Development Board 50 percent of the gross incomes of the new facilities. The intention of the language was to give the CDB 50 percent of the net profits of the facilities, or about 20 percent of the gross income.

The new bills, which were supported by the CDB and the two port districts, amend the payoff clause to specify that the districts will pay 20 percent of the gross receipts to the CDB. With unanimous support in the Senate and House committees, the bill cleared the Senate and was sent to the House floor where it was debated for 29 minutes yesterday before being passed 81-67.

State Rep. Sam Wolf (D-Granite City) took the floor the entire 29 minutes and answered questions posed by the other representatives prior to the vote.

Sam Wolf did his homework on this issue and really did a fine job on the floor," Carl Ranft, executive director of the Tri-City Regional Port commented, adding, "We also had excellent support from Rep. Joe Lucio (D-Edwardsville) and Rep. Everett Steele (R-Glen Carbon)."

Ranft explained most of the opposition was due to a misunderstanding among some of the Chicago area representatives who feared the bills may have an effect on the Chicago Port District.

If Gov. Walker signs the bills soon, specifications for construction of a new bulk handling facility here can be released July 20 with bids to be received Aug. 13, and construction beginning soon after that.

It is hoped the facility could be in operation by August 1977, employing as many as 150 persons. While the present bulk loading facility at the port can handle 400 tons per hour, it has been in operation 24 hours per day, seven days each week for some time, and has not been able to handle the volume of materials to be transferred between barges, trucks and train cars.

Motorcyclist hurt

William Garris, 24, of 2702 Denver St., was injured when his motorcycle and the auto of Richard Ferris, 2508 W. 20th St., collided on 19th Street near the railroad tracks at 10:40 a.m. Tuesday.

Witnesses reported Garris was passing a line of cars waiting for a train when Ferris started to make a U-turn as the motorcycle was passing and they collided. Garris was thrown from the cycle.

Injunction hearing Friday

A hearing on an injunction proceeding against the city of Madison — in which Louis E. and Betty McCoy, owners of the Quad-City Health System, seek to void a license revocation order — will be held in Granite City at 3 p.m. Friday.

The hearing is scheduled before Circuit Judge Horace Calvo of the Third Judicial Circuit.

Attorney Harry E. Hartman, representing the McCoy's, said he filed the injunction suit Wednesday. A declaratory judgment, holding the city action unconstitutional under the state law, is being sought, the attorney said.

Clayton S. Nighobossian is representing Madison.

The business license of the Quad-City Health System, described by officials as a "massage parlor at 1413a Second St. Madison, was revoked June 15 on orders of Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk.

The business, however, is open and in the interim operation until the matter is finally decided by the courts.

The revocation action by the mayor followed a hearing June 8.

Mayor Sasyk contended that although the establishment had a license to do business, its employees were not licensed or required by a city ordinance.

Attorney Hartman, representing the licensees, contends that under the Illinois Physical Therapy Act of September 1974, only Illinois has the authority to regulate massage parlor.

Hartman appeared before the Madison City Council June 14 and asked the council to overrule the mayor's revocation order. The council, however, unanimously upheld Mayor Sasyk's ruling.

"The city has issued a business license for the business in 1973, 1974, 1975 and 1976, and in my opinion it is in compliance with all the valid provisions of Ordinance 875," Hartman said.

Amvets Auxiliary wins state honors

Amvets Auxiliary Unit 51 won three first place state awards at the Amvets Department of Illinois convention, which concluded this week at Illinois State Beach Lodge, Waukegan.

Special awards of merit were presented to Adam Petras, immediate past Post 51 commander and Mrs. Jackie Petras, immediate past auxiliary president, for "outstanding job as a man and wife team."

Mrs. Petras announced during the convention local auxiliary members received merit awards from Post 51. She is Glenda Brockman, senior vice-president, Charlene Sanders, treasurer, Agnes Konkovich, secretary and public relations officer; and Ann Tucker, hospital chairman.

The latter award is bestowed by a local present upon members whose unit activities during the past 12 months are considered "outstanding."

A $300 grant for a joint project of Post 51 Amvets and Auxiliary, to finance work in veterans' hospitals, was announced. Mrs. Ann Tucker of Post 51 auxiliary will head the project.

Installed at the annual meeting was Petras as 25th District commander; Mrs. Petras, state sergeant-at-arms; and Mrs. Brockman, Division 5 president.

A $500 World scholarship was awarded to Miss Debra Stok of Wood River, who was sponsored by Post 51 auxiliary.

Mrs. Petras retired the colors of the convention, and to conclude the convention, her official duty as a new state officer.

A get well card was sent to Grace Greene, who was observing her birthday. Others honored on their birthday anniversaries were Leona Benham, Minnie Kuschmitz, Viola Lindner, Helen Carrington and Rhea Grove.

Mrs. Corbett invited members to visit a display of antiques and Kirkpatrick senior clubs, at Granite City Trust and Savings Bank.

Kaiser an officer of Amsted

AMSTED Industries today announced three major management promotions — John E. Kaiser Jr. to corporate vice president of AMSTED; Gordon R. Lohman to president of Macchyle Company.

AMSTED wire rope division in Kenosha, Wis., and John A. Rassenfoss to president of the AMSTED Research Laboratories, Bensenville, Ill.

The appointments are effective July 1, according to Goff Smith, AMSTED president.

The firms' subsidiaries include the American Steel Foundries.

Kaiser, who had been president of Macchyle, will move to AMSTED's Chicago corporate office and will assume responsibility for three AMSTED divisions — Diamond Chain Co., an Indianapolis producer of roller chains; Hydromation Filter Co., a Livonia, Mich., manufacturer of industrial filtration equipment and systems; and Macchyle.

In a related move, Burgess-Norton & Co., Geneva, Ill., an AMSTED division that produces piston pins and powdered metal parts, will report to corporate vice president James Woodburn.

Both Burgess-Norton and Research Laboratories are reporting to Edwin Walcher Jr., an AMSTED corporate vice president who will retire this year. In the interim, Walcher will aid in the management transition.

Kaiser joined the Macchyle organization in 1959 as an industrial relations manager. He became manager-manufacturing and industrial relations in 1961 as president-manufacturing in 1965 and president in 1968. In 1974, he graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in labor management and received a master of business administration degree from Wisconsin the following year.

Lohman started with AMSTED's Griffin Wheel division in 1958 as a research metallurgist. He was transferred to the Macchyle Research Laboratories in 1961 as a project engineer and was appointed commercial manager in 1967 and president in 1968. He is a 1955 metallurgy graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

A 35-year veteran with AMSTED, Rassenfoss joined the company's American Steel Foundries division in 1941. He was named manager of ASF's Manufacturing Research Laboratory in 1955, secretary of the Griffin Wheel division in 1967, and director of research at the AMSTED Research Laboratories in 1972. A 1940 metallurgical engineering graduate of the University of Kentucky, he also earned a master of science degree there in 1941.

AMSTED is a broadly diversified manufacturer with annual sales of about $500,000,000.

It operates 10 divisions with approximately 10,000 employees, and serves such markets as the railroads, construction and building, and general industry.

2 robberies in Madison

Madison police are investigating two armed robberies that occurred Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ralph Miller, operator of the Sportsman's Club, 1001 Iowa St., reported that at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday a man in his early 20's came in displaying a .32 caliber automatic pistol and said, "This is a hold up, give me the money in your pockets."

Miller reported he turned over about $400 to the robber, who fled north on Clark.

At 11:45 p.m. Wednesday the attendant at the Clark Service station, 320 Madison Ave., called police to report he had been robbed.

The attendant told police two men between 18 and 20 years of age hit him on the lip and said, "Give us the money." One of the robbers reportedly said to his partner, "Open the safe, then kill him."

The attendant told the safe was locked and he did not have the key.

The men then took about $35 in silver and small bills from him and fled on foot east on Fourth Street.

Madison children respond to professor's clowning around

By Cindy Kyle

The situation seemed hopeless. The clown couldn't do anything right, only fall and tumble all over the stage to bounce back up with a wide grin on his bright yellow face. The chance of being hired by the ringmaster for the big circus seemed quite slim.

The children giggled nervously every time the clown sneaked quietly behind the ringmaster. Then, when he blew his nose, knocking the ringmaster off the chair and onto the floor in fright, the children laughed with delight. Still, the ringmaster just shook her head in disgust, saying she wouldn't hire a clown that couldn't do any tricks.

There was just no place for him in the circus. When all seemed lost, the clown took a pair of batons and skillfully twirled them up to the ceiling, showing the ringmaster that he was indeed a clown who could do tricks.

But doing tricks was not a full-time job for the clown, and the ringmaster wasn't one at all, but Evelyn Ritz, a third grade teacher. The circus ring was really Blair Elementary School in Madison, and the clown would never find his way into the rings of Barnum and Bailey but only back to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville where he is an associate professor of elementary education.

Don Darnell has been performing his clown act for area schools and banquets at the rate of about three a week. Including loading up the props, he has been performing for about a year. He has a lot of help with his makeup when he allows a class of school children to experiment on him with colorful creams and paints before a performance.

Of course, all the children kindergarten through sixth graders, are delighted by the clown. The act also requires a narrator usually a teacher or student teacher. The narrators use their own imagination projecting their emotions to the children in the audience by asking them what they would do as clowns, and whether they would be happy clowns or sad ones.

Darnell is a happy clown, especially gratified by the happy responses of the children, but it is an experience which he hopes will be more firmly developed and used as a basis for exploration in the classrooms after his visit is over.

"I hope that all teachers project not only education, but values and feelings and creativity as well," he says. "My purpose in doing this is to give children a common experience, something which they can identify easily with, to be a base by which they can think, feel, and express these emotions through drawing, writing, or imitation. I encourage the teachers to take the performance and use it in the classroom to let the children react to their feelings." Darnell has piles of letters and clown drawings sent to him by the children and teachers after visits to their schools which show their reactions.

The act is also an excellent way to present to the public that professors are human beings, too, many of whom are willing to share their time and talents becoming involved with children within the community." Darnell said. Most schools hear about his act and contact the Speaker's Bureau at SIUE, which schedules his performances.

Children, and even the grandmothers at mother-daughter banquets, are truly delighted by the performance," he said, his own voice often showing delight. "Sometimes the very young and the very old have much in common in terms of imagination and appreciation, where those of us in between seem to be too rushed in our lives."

Darnell himself has had a very busy life teaching, writing, performing, and traveling. He had an early start in the circus, performing with an acrobatically inclined family, and along with his twin brother won the national title in baton twirling in both the U.S. and Canada in 1948.

After entering the military in the early 50's, he was a solo performer with a military band, often performing his baton twirling routine at military football games. While teaching at Vanderbilt University, he also performed with his band.

Darnell points out that he was much younger and more agile in those days, but the routine still requires much skill. "It just takes a little longer to prepare for the act and to recover from the physical stress of the acrobatics these days," he said. Teaching and working with children of all ages has made up a big part of Darnell's life. He considers it a "great joy just to see the beautiful way that children respond to things," and has taught at every age level.

Darnell has not limited his teaching to this country. A few years ago, he had the opportunity to go to South Vietnam through a joint program at SIUE, Carbondale and the International Volunteer Services (a forerunner of VISTA).

From 1963 to 1967, Darnell lived in a small Vietnamese fishing village while teaching at a junior college 300 miles from Saigon. He describes it as a truly profound experience. "Teaching and living among the people as I did, I know the sadness of war, and it was hard to keep one's perspective under those conditions. But I learned to love the people and the culture for themselves and to reflect on those things which I could affect, rather than on the misery of war," he said.

GOSPEL SINGER TO APPEAR AT SERVICES

Roger McDuff, gospel singer of Pasadena, Tex., will appear Sunday at the Tri-City Park Tabernacle, 2501 Clark Ave., during the 9:45 a.m. youth services, 10:45 a.m. morning worship services and at the 7 p.m. evening services.

Metric workshop

The Office of Conferences and Institutes at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will offer a workshop on the metric system, beginning July 12 and continuing through Aug. 16.

Sessions will meet on Mondays from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. in Room 2415 of the Peck Classroom Building, taught by Steven Sanders, professor of physics.

The national goal of converting the U.S. system of weights and measures to the metric system has produced a feeling of anxiety in those unfamiliar with the realm of measures, Sanders says. Purpose of the course is to relieve such feelings and to enable the metric system to be used, with greater ease than the current system. Registration for the workshop is $25. Additional information on this or other workshops offered at the university this summer may be obtained by contacting Bonnie Little at the Office of Conferences and Institutes at SIUE.

AMERICA PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE Industry

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles celebrating the Bicentennial. Each one describes a separate aspect of American life, as it appeared 200 years ago, as it stands today, and as it is likely to look in 2076, as envisioned by specialists in that particular field. This article deals with industry.

By ROBERT BETTS

"God gives all things to industry," said Benjamin Franklin. In Franklin's time, farms and plantations covering thousands of acres and employing hundreds of workers were producing most of the goods for export as well as for use at home. The same time, furniture makers, carriage builders, leather workers, tailors, batters, silversmiths and other craftsmen were turning out custom-made articles in competition with those that were fashioned crudely by the average householder and had no need to be imported from England.

Factories were comparatively few. British policy had ordained that the Colonies should supply the mother country with raw materials, but not compete in manufacturing. By 1776, however, even as Thomas Jefferson extolled the virtues of an agrarian society, the foundations of U.S. industry were being laid across New England. Lumber mills and flour mills, woolen mills, foundries and workshops were the precursors of a revolution that would rival the American Revolution in its meaning for mankind.

Agriculture still ranked first, but falling, from food to raw materials. The shipbuilding industry that was the envy of the Revolution, a third of the British marine was American-built.

The United States has within 200 years become the industrial giant of the world, the most advanced technology of any country and with a gross national product exceeding a trillion dollars. It produces more goods per person than any other country. Its farms produce more of the world's exportable grain than the Middle East does of the world's oil, while U.S. factories produce an enormous amount of the world's goods.

Predictions about the next 100 years vary widely. Many experts are pessimistic about what Americans face in the future. Some foresee technical breakdown and economic collapse because of the growing pressure on resources, not only in the United States but across the globe.

The authors of "The Limits to Growth," a report to the Club of Rome's "Project on the Predicament of Mankind," declared:

If present growth trends in world population, industrialization, pollution, food production and resource depletion continue unchanged, the limits to growth on this planet will be reached sometime within the next one hundred years.

Other experts, however, have debunked this computer-based study because it did not account for potential advances in science and technology. Much has been made of the idea that the United States, along with most of the Western world, is moving toward what sociologist Daniel Bell, of Harvard University, describes as "the post-industrial society," one in which knowledge and technology replace manufacturing and physical labor as the dominant factor of economic and social life.

Some futurists believe U.S. energy and resource supplies will be adequate to serve the needs of 300 million Americans who are expected to inhabit the nation by around 2076. One noted optimist is Herman Kahn of the Hudson Institute, who refutes the notion that we are running out of energy or resources.

Are we running out of ability to feed people from a technological and economic point of view? Absolutely not. No way," he says. "Can we retain clean air and clean water and esthetic landscapes? Absolutely."

According to a survey covering a dozen areas of specialization in 141 industrial firms, recently conducted by McGraw-Hill Publications Department of Economics, the ultimate answer to shortages of primary materials, elementary synthesis of plastics, will be possible in the 21st Century.

Plastics breakthroughs cited in the survey cover a broad gamut, from food to domestic plastics. Edible, nutritious plastics and non-burning plastics that are both stronger and lighter than metals are predicted.

Widespread use is forecast for plastic pipe, both above ground and underwater. Large areas of desert land will be used for agricultural production through the use of plastic covering. Based on plastic foam insulation now used, polar cities are seen as being economically viable by the year 2000.

The technologists envision air-conditioned cities and compact, total-energy plants for the home. Solar energy and nuclear power heat will be widely available, as will synthetic fuels from such substances as coal and oil shale.

Lasers, ultrasonics and high-frequency currents will be used to increase yields from unminable or low-grade mineral deposits. Ocean minerals also will be recovered from the seabed. An economic method of desalinating seawater will be known.

Underground mining will be automated. So will much transportation. Stronger, lighter and corrosion-resistant alloys also will have evolved.

Synthetic fiber with the properties of natural cotton, a flame-retardant, durable, soil-release man-made cotton, composite yarns and a fiber that changes color will be available.

The computer is expected to be able to learn by itself, with self-teaching computers commonplace. Scientists expect a direct computer-to-person system interconnection or brain-computer connection to be in widespread use in the 21st Century.

Electronic memo pads, standard communicating typewriters and personal portable telephones will ease office and home work. Electronic funds transfer, leading to a cashless and checkless society, is likely to revolutionize the nation's financial system.

News notes

U.S. Senator Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and members of his staff are scheduled to make an inspection tour of the Alton Locks and Dam Saturday. The senator expects to arrive at the facility at 10 a.m. for a two-hour tour.

A requirement that most insurance firms active in Illinois write workmen's compensation policies was voted Wednesday by the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee.

Legislative action was completed Wednesday on a $112 million 1976-77 fiscal year budget for Southern Illinois University. An effort to abolish the Illinois Bureau of Investigation was defeated in the House.

Some legislators are continuing their efforts to legalize policy numbers, game, in Illinois. But the Illinois Senate Revenue Committee on Tuesday killed a plan for speeding up the collection of state taxes.

State legislative action was completed Tuesday on a proposal to double from $20,000 to $40,000 the amount which surviving members of a perished immediate family can inherit tax-free.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday that tax money can be spent on annual grants to church-related colleges to provide non-religious education.

The House Judiciary Committee decided 8-5 Tuesday against replacing the state's recently overruled anti-obscenity law. Legislation that could legalize the prison stays of those convicted of violent crimes passed the House.

Extension of the state's minimum wage law to many employees not presently covered continued to progress in the legislature Wednesday.

The Illinois Senate this week approved a delay in legislation requiring policy to handle alcoholism as a disease instead of a crime.

Sentence McKenzie

Larry Eugene McKenzie, 25, of the 2000 block of 12th Street has been sentenced in Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville to serve two concurrent one to three-year terms for unlawful delivery of cannabis and of a controlled substance. McKenzie pleaded guilty May 19 to both charges before Circuit Judge Moses Harrison II, who also pronounced the sentence. McKenzie was among more than 30 persons arrested in a coordinated series of drug arrests by the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois in March.

TAKE PICKUP TRUCK

The white over blue 1976 Chevrolet pickup truck of Ernie Kastings, Hartford, was stolen from 14th and Iowa streets between 3:14 a.m. and 11:45 p.m. Wednesday. The truck, which has the owner's name written on each side, also had a white camper shell containing tools and golf clubs.

MAN IS ASSAULTED

Charles Wilson, 25, of 1736 Ferguson Ave., was admitted to St. Elizabeth Hospital at 2:10 a.m. today after having been assaulted in St. Louis about 1 a.m. He said someone jumped on him and struck his head. A one-half inch cut to the top of his head was sutured.

AMERICA PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE Transportation/Communication

"It took George Washington only a week to travel the 230-odd miles between Mt. Vernon and New York for his inauguration—a fair speed for those days.

He could have made it faster on horseback, galloping all the way and eliminating overnight stops. He did the journey by coach, except for a ceremonial horseback ride into Philadelphia and a voyage by ceremonial barge across the bay to New York.

Travel was no pleasure for the first Americans. It was slow, strenuous and often dangerous. To journey between towns or scattered settlements meant days or weeks of tiresome riding along rough trails and rutted, potholed dirt or gravel roads.

A few stretches were paved with logs and some city streets were cobbled. The many rivers and bays and the Atlantic Ocean made water transportation popular. Some people journeyed between towns by way of the coast, preferring the cramped quarters of a coastal merchant sloop to the miasmas of overland travel.

Benjamin Franklin took two weeks going by sea from Philadelphia to Boston.

As postmaster general, Franklin took steps to improve the mail service. It had taken a post rider six weeks to make the trip between Philadelphia and Boston. Franklin established a weekly mail service and cut the time by half. Mails were dispatched between Philadelphia and New York three times a week in summer, twice a week in winter.

Delivery in 36 hours was usual. Official mail went free, private letters cost two pence per 100 miles, paid by those receiving them. All mail was carried on horseback. The post riders were tough, weathered individuals who spent their lives in a constant challenge against time, mud and snowdrifts to get the mail through. At the time of the Revolution there were only 28 post offices.

In the decade before 1800, American roads increased in mileage from 2,400 to 20,000 miles.

Before the westward migration began, Indian trails and uncertain wagon tracks crossed the Appalachians. One was the Wilderness Trail through the Cumberland Gap into Kentucky, opened by Daniel Boone in 1769. Another was the one hacked out by Gen. Braddock's army in 1755, the first year of the French and Indian War, to move guns and baggage wagons. It went from Cumberland on the Potomac River to Ft. Pitt (Pittsburgh) in Pennsylvania.

After the Revolution these trails became well traveled by packhorse and wagon as more and more people headed west.

The sheer size of the country meant giving top priority to devising better ways of moving goods and people. Such development has resulted 200 years later in a vast transportation and communications network that probably would have been beyond the imagination of our forefathers.

Today, cities, towns, farms and remote hamlets from coast to coast are linked by four million miles of streets, roads and super highways, 200,000 miles of railroad and some 700 million miles of telephone line, as well as by millions of miles of electric cable and gas and water pipelines.

Americans are breathtakingly mobile. Day or night finds a high proportion of the nation's 300-million cars, bus and truck drivers on the road. They drive a trillion miles a year. Aircraft take off and land at some 12,000 airports. Air traffic controllers in airport towers across the country handle around a million aircraft operations a week. U.S. airlines carry more than 200 million domestic and international passengers a year. Another 250-odd million passengers travel by rail, and more than 150 million by bus.

It takes the transportation of 2.5 billion tons of materials a year to keep our cities going. The national fleet of some 1.8 million freight cars could form a solid train that would span the continent five times. They handle 40 percent of the nation's goods. The rest is transported by air, truck, canal barge, riverboat or coaster.

Someone has figured that if all the automobiles in the United States were lined up bumper to bumper they would stretch for a quarter of a million miles—and 83 percent of their drivers would immediately pull out and pass.

With the space-age technology now available, transportation experts believe it will be possible within the next century to move people as efficiently on the ground from city to city as the airplane does today and nearly as fast.

The tracked air-cushion vehicle, or aerotrain, currently undergoing study is expected to reach speeds up to 300 m.p.h. Another concept for the future uses electromagnetic force to both support and propel a vehicle along a track. It could power low-speed people movers in dense urban areas, and eventually long-distance vehicles traveling in tubes at supersonic speeds.

Researchers and engineers foresee future stretches of highway for "no hands" driving, where automation would take over from the driver. His car would carry him along the 100 m.p.h. expressway to his destination, shutting station, where he would take over manual control again to drive to his parking place.

Cars will be service-free and virtually accident-proof, according to transportation engineers reporting in the Survey of Technological Breakthroughs and Widespread Applications conducted by McGraw-Hill Publications' Department of Economics.

A plastic auto body and frame will be in common use. Everything but the engine block and drive train will be plastic. The electric car also will be technically perfected. Also foreseen—an atom-powered railroad, noise-free trains and much quieter aircraft.

Aerospace experts predict that by 1985 an economic alternative to petroleum fuel should be technically possible. By 1995, they say it will be economical, and its widespread use is expected by the year 2010.

A permanent lunar base will be attainable by the year 2000, say the aerospace experts, but it will be the latter half of the 21st Century before a permanent base is accessible to the public.

Visits to Mars are expected to be economically possible early next century.

Training Center (ERTC), which is under construction at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will be established during a special two-day planning workshop July 8 and 9.

Community college representatives concerned with pollution control facility operator training will attend the workshop at SIUE.

The ERTC, when completed in December, will assist community colleges in pollution control facility operator training and coordinate such training within the state.

According to James O. Bryant Jr., newly-appointed director of the ERTC, the purpose of the workshop is to define those ERTC activities which will be of greatest benefit and assistance to community colleges.

"The proceedings of the workshop will be used as a basis for formulating final plans for the Center's programs which interface with all the community colleges," Bryant said. "This is really a mechanism for getting college input into our planning before we make final decisions on project activities for next year."

Speakers at the workshop will include Director Bryant, Earl Laserson, acting vice-president and provost at SIUE; Ernest C. Bennett, manager of the operator certification and training unit of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA); David Oehmke, of the Division of Public Water Supplies of the IEPA; Joseph Bahack, chief of the Manpower Planning and Training Branch of the U.S. EPA; and Gary Hull, chairman of the SIUE Department of Instructional Technology.

As of this month the federal credit union system had more than 17.5 million members, with total assets of nearly $23 billion. The present officers here are Ernest E. president, Alex Skubish, vice president, Bill Heath, treasurer, and George Grumm, secretary. The credit union employs 10 people and is on direct data processing system.

New Forum chairman long active in regional matters

Leo H. Koszen and Otis Bolden, chairman and vice-chairman of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council's Regional Forum, the council's citizen organization, see the posts as offering opportunity for constructive service. Koszen, a resident of Granite City, is a member of the law firm of Loewers, Robertson and Koszen. He has been actively involved in citizen groups for 20 years through such organizations as the United Way and the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

He became interested in the Gateway Council at its inception and wrote an article on its formation.

Koszen also served on the first Citizen Task Force considering reform of government structure and from there moved to become a member of the Regional Forum.

As chairman, he will seek to establish a more definite relationship between the Gateway Council's board of directors and the Regional Forum.

Bolden, a resident of St. Louis, is assistant dean, research and development, Forest Park Community College.

He also has been involved in numerous citizen organizations, including the Yeastman District Community Corporation, the Urban League and the Citizen Task Force on Education.

Bolden, as vice-chairman, views the Forum as one of the positive, viable forces for redevelopment of the St. Louis area.

Four youthful skaters representing the Stardust Skate Center, 3967 Lake Drive, became gold medalists last week at the Illinois-Wisconsin Bi-State Roller Skating Championships at Westmont, Ill.

Winning first place gold medals were Michele Dickerson, 15, and Tom Hansen, 15, skating in the Freshman Division, and Cheryl Jateff, 11, and Daryl Smith, 13, skating in the Elementary Dance division.

Seven car tires cut

Seven car tires were cut on vehicles in the 1700 block of Maple Street, it was reported Thursday. Police noted the tires all appeared to have been cut with a knife.

One tire was cut on each of the two cars of Dan Barnes, 1713 Maple St., parked at his home, and one tire was cut on each of the vehicles of Lester Flannery, 1711 Maple St., Greg Mouradian, 1706 Maple St., Marvin Moehle, 1706 Maple St., and Mary Marcus, 1738 Maple St.

One tire also was cut on the vehicle of Sarkis Hagopian, 821 Niedringhaus Ave., while parked in the 1700 block of Maple St.

The Hansen youth also won a third place bronze medal in the Freshman Figure division. The holder of many dance and figure skating awards, he underwent major surgery Aug. 4, 1975, to correct a birth defect in both feet and was forced to wear foot and leg casts until early last November.

Tom, a sophomore this fall at Granite City High School South, and Michele, a freshman at North High School, teamed up as new partners and began taking lessons together in January.

Cheryl, a pupil at Frohardt Grade School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Jateff, 3221 Bluebird Lane. Her partner, Daryl, 13, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, 2644 Palomares Way, St. Charles, Mo. He also captured a silver medal for a second place finish in the Sub-Novice Figure division.

Both couples received traveling plaques which will be displayed for one year at the Stardust Skate Center.

All four skaters are the students of Carmen Dickerson, a professional instructor at the Stardust Skate Center.

The young champions will compete next at the Great Lakes Regional Roller Skating Championships, scheduled July 1 to July 8 at Troy, Mich.

GOLD MEDALISTS in the Illinois-Wisconsin Bi-State Roller Skating Championships at Westmont, Ill., are Michele Dickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dickerson, 4103 Breckenridge Lane, and Tom Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hansen, 3133 Willow Ave. Michele, a freshman at Granite City High School North, and Tom, a sophomore at South High, won first place gold medals in the Freshman Dance division. Both are 15 years old. The traveling plaque will be displayed at the Stardust Skate Center, 3967 Lake Drive.

Difficult challenge—to protect elm trees

By WAYNE B. SIEFERT Area Adviser in Ornamental Horticulture

Two diseases of American elms continue to rampage through elms in Southern Illinois — Dutch elm disease and phloem necrosis.

Forty years of work in Europe have produced elm hybrids resistant to the Dutch elm fungus while scientists in the United States were locating wild trees that were naturally immune.

But the virus disease, phloem necrosis, easily infects and kills both resistant hybrid elms and American elms with natural resistance to Dutch elm disease.

Both diseases are spread by insects. Dutch elm disease is spread by two species of beetles that transport fungus spores from dead "infected" elms to healthy trees as part of the dust on their bodies.

Both beetles permit "accidental" infection of healthy trees as they chew on the bark of small twigs.

Phloem necrosis, a virus disease, is carried inside the body of the white banded elm leaf hopper and injected into a healthy elm when the leaf hopper sucks sap from a twig or leaf.

Symptoms are distinct. Dutch elm disease produces a progression of wilting and yellowing as the fungus progresses from one twig in the top to one limb and finally one side of the tree. Elm trees usually die within a period of weeks, but sometimes linger as long as two years.

Researchers note that injection of infected trees with a special formula of Benomyl (Benlate) will cure them if attempted when the symptoms are in the one-twig stage (less than five per cent of the entire tree).

Phloem necrosis virus produces a sudden "dying" of the entire tree due to a paralyzing of the bark tissue (phloem) and ultimate starving of the roots. There is no means of protecting or treating elms infected with phloem necrosis.

At the present time, scientists are discouraged in their fight to save elms because natural controls are so complicated.

They note that Chinese and Siberian elms seem to be immune to the virus as well as the fungus; but neither has the horticultural qualities many expect of an elm.

Elm trees resistant to one disease or the other are under cultivation. But hybridization of these trees takes time and money.

Julie Harris at MRF Monday

Quad-Cityans will be getting a one-time only chance on June 28 to see Julie Harris in "The Belle of Amherst" when the Broadway production appears at the Mississippi River Festival, held on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"We were very fortunate in being able to arrange for Julie Harris to perform 'Belle,' said Billy Holt, concert manager for the MRF. 'We've been told that this is the only time that 'Belle' will be performed in the area."

The production, a one-act show that features Miss Harris in the role of poetess Emily Dickinson, is directed by Charles Nelson Reilly. Reilly, perhaps best known for his comedy work, is also considered one of the best drama teachers in New York and Los Angeles.

He has directed a number of showcase productions in New York, as well as the highly successful revival of "Private Lives," starring Elaine Stritch. "Belle" is his Broadway directorial debut.

Julie Harris, considered by many critics Broadway's premier actress, portrays the eccentricity of Emily Dickinson in the surroundings of Miss Dickinson's home in Amherst, Mass.

"We are reproducing the Broadway stage here at the MRF site," Mrs. Holt said, "and we hope the highly successful revival of 'Private Lives,' starring Elaine Stritch, will be the only time that 'Belle' will be performed in the area."

The MRF production has had only two weeks to prepare the stage since "Belle" is a late substitute for the rescheduled Hal Holbrook production of "Mark Twain Tonight!" in spite of that time element, said Mrs. Holt, "the production should have a very faithful reproduction of the set used in the Broadway production."

Emily Dickinson was America's first great poetess and perhaps the greatest in the production, Julie Harris portrays a woman who from her mother's onward displayed a uniqueness in her private life that was perhaps intentionally eccentric. Although Miss Dickinson wrote over 1,700 poems in her lifetime, her fame came only after her death in 1886.

The title of the play comes from a letter Miss Dickinson wrote to a friend as a 15-year-old. "I am growing handsomer very fast indeed," she wrote. "I expect I shall be the Belle of Amherst when I reach my 17th year."

Julie Harris, in portraying Emily Dickinson, is given ample opportunity to display the acting talent that has won her four Tony Awards on Broadway.

Her most recent Tony was for her starring role in "The Last Days of Mrs. Lincoln." Her three other Tony awards came for her acting in "I Am a Camera," "The Lark as Joan of Arc," and in "Forty Carats." In her career, she has played Shakespeare with the Old Vic, The Stratford in Ontario, Canada, and in the New York Shakespeare Festival. She has also been in such Broadway productions as "Milk and Honey," "The Member of the Wedding," "The Country Wife," "A Shot in the Dark," and many others, including last season's "In Prison with Love" with Rex Harrison.

JULIE HARRIS in a scene from "The Belle of Amherst" which will make a one-time showing at the Mississippi River Festival on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Monday night, June 28. The Broadway production replaces the scheduled appearance of Hal Holbrook which has been postponed to Sept. 16.

Miss Harris is, of course, an outstanding talent," said Mrs. Holt in anticipation of the MRF production, "and the play is a good vehicle for her talents. Since we have rescheduled the Holbrook performance for mid-September, this addition of 'The Belle of Amherst' means the Festival will have two outstanding one-person shows this season. We are very fortunate to have two shows of such quality."

The Festival opened its 1976 season Wednesday with the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, a unique group of musicians playing an unprogrammed evening of New Orleans-style jazz that hails from the famous Preservation Hall in the heart of the French Quarter of New Orleans.

This evening, the Benny Goodman Sextet will perform

Benny Goodman, "The King of Swing," has been in the forefront of jazz music since the early 1930's, when he organized his first band and performed on coast-to-coast radio for Billy Rose on "Rose's Music Hall." Today, in his mid-50s, Goodman remains at the apex of his field, playing both jazz and classical music.

On Friday Chuck Mangione and Esther Satterfield will sound out the three nights of jazz with their presentation of modern jazz. Mangione has been called "a budding jazz giant... an instrumentalist, composer, arranger, songwriter, symphony orchestra conductor." His work focuses on melody and harmony rather than leaning heavily on percussion.

Singer Esther Satterfield plays an important supporting role in Mangione's work, with a voice that blends well with Mangione's horn in such important recordings as "Softly, and 'Land of Make Believe.' The final night of the first week will be the Saturday evening of Barbershop Harmony with the Thoroughbred Chorus, the 4th Edition, and the Pittsburgh Four.

KING OF SWING Benny Goodman will feature tonight's program at the Mississippi River Festival on the Southern Illinois University Campus at Edwardsville. Goodman has been in the forefront of jazz music since the 1930s.

Benny Goodman, "The King of Swing," has been in the forefront of jazz music since the early 1930's, when he organized his first band and performed on coast-to-coast radio for Billy Rose on "Rose's Music Hall." Today, in his mid-50s, Goodman remains at the apex of his field, playing both jazz and classical music.

On Friday Chuck Mangione and Esther Satterfield will sound out the three nights of jazz with their presentation of modern jazz. Mangione has been called "a budding jazz giant... an instrumentalist, composer, arranger, songwriter, symphony orchestra conductor." His work focuses on melody and harmony rather than leaning heavily on percussion.

Witnesses establish new Assembly Hall

Jehovah's Witnesses are renovating the former Ice Chateau Skating Rink in North St. Louis County, for use as an Assembly Hall, Walter Schafer, presiding overseer of the Granite City Congregation, announced this week.

He said that the Witnesses purchased the building last Dec. 12 and secured approval of building plans on March 5. The future Assembly Hall is located at Larimore and Laredo Roads in North St. Louis County.

The entire remodeling program is being carried out by Jehovah's Witnesses from eastern Missouri and southern Illinois, including the Quad-City area. All of the workers have volunteered their labor free. The job overseers are Witnesses who are professionally skilled in architecture, construction, interior design, sound engineering, electrical, and other trades. Some weekends have found more than two hundred volunteers busy on the facility.

When completed, the main auditorium will seat 1,500 persons. A dining room, kitchen, offices for various departments, and a baptismal pool also are included in the plans.

In addition to work done on the site, activities have been taking place elsewhere. At a farm owned by one of the Witnesses in Roxana, seats that the Witnesses purchased from three metropolitan theaters have been sandblasted, painted and repolished by Witness volunteers, Schafer said.

The purpose of the Assembly Hall is to accommodate the circuit assemblies that Jehovah's Witnesses hold. Previously they have used school auditoriums and gymnasiums, but with their growth and the increased complications of securing convention sites, they have been building their own facilities in many places. The new hall will be the twenty-third such building in this country.

In order to handle the large district involved, the eastern half of Missouri and the southern half of Illinois, the conventions will be staggered so that with a two-day session held two or three weekends each month, all 10,000 of Jehovah's Witnesses using the building will attend two conventions a year. Various special events will be programmed on other dates.

Suit filed in fatal accident

An eight-count suit has been filed in Madison County Circuit Court against Chouteau Township and Chouteau Township Highway Commission James Eates alleging negligence which led to a fatal accident June 15, 1974, on Old Alton Road.

The suit alleges that on that date, Danny Monroe of Granite City was operating a motor vehicle on Old Alton Road near the WGNL radio station and the car struck a hole in the road, left the roadway and struck a utility pole.

The accident resulted in the death of James Ruth Gaudreault, 15, Granite City, and injuries to the others in the car.

Complainants in the lawsuit are Danny Monroe, Pamela Monroe by her father John Monroe, Edward Gaudreault, administrator of the estate of the late James Gaudreault, and Norman Hopper, all of Granite City.

The first count seeks $75,000 from Danny Monroe from the township and the second count seeks the same amount for Monroe from Eates.

Counts three and four seek $125,000 each from the township and from Eates, respectively, for Pamela Monroe, a passenger in the vehicle.

'Anti' petition drives understandable as a form of tax protest but effect would be to bar truly needed sewers

Petition drives to attempt to block sanitary sewers in areas needing sewer service probably were inevitable. Not every property owner in any community is sympathetic to an increase in his tax rate, regardless of how worthy the cause.

Whether enough valid signatures were submitted to block the Area One, Two or Three projects will not be known until Madison County officials have had a chance to compare all of them with voter and assessment lists.

If new sewers are prevented, it will be extremely unfortunate because these sewer areas can be a program so well fitted to the situation.

It is almost a certainty that such sewers will be required, and the future cost would be much more severe, both due to inflation and due to the fact that such extensive state-federal help never again is likely to be available.

Quadrants worked for many years to devise the plan that was adopted last month by the Madison County Board. Like failed "Bridgeway" it was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

If sewers are authorized by an absence of major opposition, it will be a great day for this community and its future. Building will be stimulated and there will be a healthy expansion of the tax base, helping shoulder the burden borne by existing residents and firms.

The specific state law under which the sewer planning has been carried out has become a subject of controversy. Many would prefer the election process for such matters.

It is a phenomenon of the era in which we live that many Americans — understandably frustrated by the tax load, are prone to reject school, sewer and other proposals on which they are given a direct voice, but are equally willing to elect and reelect national and state officials who spend much larger sums without their specific permission.

The tax trend in the U.S. is a matter of deep concern but obviously a much broader problem than the three-area sewer program, which should not have to bear the full brunt of the blame.

There is a current joke about a man who was asked, "How's your wife?" and replied, "Compared to what?" Every dollar devoted to sewers easily could be used for some other purpose or for savings. But compared to any other available alternative, the sewer plan that was offered to area residents is the best buy and is much less expensive than any other procedure.

One of the most disturbing aspects of the debate was the heavy emphasis on cost, with little consideration of benefits.

Time to discuss possible stimulants for Downtown area

Central business districts have become known nationally as being in a difficult transition period due to changes in population, transportation and commerce patterns.

Granite City's Downtown area has remained relatively healthy and continues to be a center of extensive business activity, but a tendency toward increasing store vacancies is a subject of much discussion.

Since traffic, parking and municipal services have a big effect on retail areas — and since cities derive considerable sales tax revenue from such areas — the needs and wishes of government and retail firms are intertwined.

Frank talks between aldermen, citywide officials, store operators, building owners and financial institutions might be appropriate at this time.

All have much at stake in the continued healthy functioning of the central district, just as there is interest in the welfare of all other commercial areas within the Quadrants.

Man-made or man-related problems are subject to being remedied or improved by men (and women) if they recognize the issue as deserving of their time and effort.

Downtown Granite City can build on its solid foundation of retail and service — if all who can play a helpful role come forward.

CAPITOL COMMENT

Debate focuses on immunity granting

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — Immunity has become a controversial word in the current government and political in Illinois.

It is a reflection of our times that such an innocuous word, which for years was associated mainly with the medical practice of inoculating children against smallpox and other diseases, should suddenly become the focus of legal debate.

However, legal or judicial immunity already has resulted in the conviction and imprisonment of a number of prominent Illinois politicians, including a former governor.

It may well cause another decade in prison for a sizable contingent of present and former Illinois legislators. It could possibly have an effect on the current race for governor.

The practice of granting immunity from criminal prosecution in exchange for evidence to be used in prosecuting others is certain to be a subject for future discussion in the legal profession. Future legislatures may want to consider ways to define or limit its use in state courts.

The immunity issue, smoldering beneath the surface, flared into the open in a federal trial in Chicago of six present or former legislators accused of participating in a bribery scheme involving the ready-cast cement industry.

United States Attorney Samuel K. Skinner was called to the stand to explain why he granted immunity to Lester Crown, president of Material Service Corp., source of the alleged pay-offs to gain passage of the so-called "cement bill" in the 1971 legislative session.

Skinner said that Crown and other company employees refused to be interviewed by government investigators unless they received immunity from prosecution.

Previous to the grant of immunity, Skinner said his office had no evidence whatsoever and that the case was stalled in a grand jury.

He defended the immunity practice, declaring that it is the only way to get information from a "reluctant witness" who plans to plead the Fifth Amendment otherwise.

The immunity issue has taken on political overtones recently because of its identity with Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson.

Immunity was intensively used by Thompson during his years as U.S. Prosecutor in Chicago, and he has been largely responsible for bringing about many convictions, including that of late Gov. Otto Kerner in the race-track scandal.

But there has been growing criticism that the immunity practice too often results in some persons, who may be as guilty of law violations as the

(American Waterways Operators)

The Subcommittee on Water Resources of the U.S. Senate Public Works Committee, chaired by Senator Mike Gravel (D-Alaska), has opened hearings on the proposal to replace Alton Locks and Dam 26. Other senators present include Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the full committee; Howard H. Baker Jr. (R-Tenn.); John C. Culver, (D-Iowa); Pete V. Domenici (R-N.M.) and Gary Hart (D-Colo.).

Major General Ernest Graves, director of Civil Works, Office of the Chief of Engineers, testified, "In my view, improvement of Locks and Dam 26 is the most important navigation project that Congress has considered since it authorized the nine-foot channel on the Mississippi River in 1930."

On conditions at the existing project, Gen. Graves testified, "This is a 36-year old structure which is experiencing serious deterioration and foundation problems. As deterioration has progressed, operation and maintenance costs have increased."

"In 1970, nearly $400,000 was expended to stabilize the river wall of the auxiliary lock. An estimated $7 million will be necessary for protection of the scour hole and for repair of the dam stilling basin this coming year."

The Army engineer told the committee that the only way to arrest the deterioration "is carry out a complete rehabilitation of the existing structure. This would be just as costly as the alternative recommended plan for replacement — and would not have the safe, rugged foundation a new dam."

The Civil Works director said, "The Upper Mississippi River and its shorelands comprise a national environmental resource. The value of this resource was greatly enhanced by the construction of the navigation project in the 1930s."

"The navigation dam doubled the water area and created a valuable aquatic habitat for fish and water fowl. Presently, there are 266,000 acres along the banks of the Upper Mississippi River available to federal refugees and state game management areas."

The navigation pools also enhance the capacity for pleasure boating, fishing, swimming and other water-related outdoor recreational activities."

Gen. Graves addressed the sill and channel depth issues by telling the committee, "Of course, an 18-foot sill will allow a 12-foot barge to pass. But where would it go? A 12-foot channel on the Upper Mississippi River is not authorized; it is not economically justified above Grafton."

"Serious low-flow problems would jeopardize any effort to achieve a decision on the open river reach between Cairo and St. Louis, in my opinion, it will never be resolved."

The 12-foot channel is only a red herring which serves to obscure the real issues involved in reaching a decision on the replacement of Locks and Dam 26.

"In view of the critical situation, the chief of Engineers proposes authorization of immediate replacement of the present unreliable structure with a new dam and a 19-foot by 1,200-foot main lock at a location approximately two miles downstream from the existing structure. The design and construction of the new dam to provide for the addition of an auxiliary lock at such time as it may be required."

"The estimated cost to the United States of initial construction based on January 1976 price levels is $390 million."

Asked to comment on S. 3506 (Mondale bill), Gen. Graves testified, "The objectives of S. 3506 appear to be similar in many ways to those of the chief of Engineers' proposed report. The major difference in approach lies in Section 4 of the bill, which would vest responsibility for conduct of studies and making recommendations in the Upper Mississippi River Basin Commission."

"The chief's proposed report," he said, "would rely on established procedures for conducting necessary studies in coordination with other agencies, and for processing recommendations to Congress."

Gen. Graves told the committee a report from the Department of the Army on S. 3506 is being prepared and will be submitted to the committee shortly.

Robert H. Binder, assistant secretary for policy, plans and international affairs, Department of Transportation, also testified before the subcommittee on the project.

The secretary identified three options for proceeding with the project:

- (1) Postpone any corrective action until further major studies are undertaken.
- (2) Go forward with a new dam and 1,200-foot lock but take no action on a second lock without further study.
- (3) Go forward with a new dam and accept the Corps' justification for two 1,200-foot locks.

The secretary added, "If we accept the Corps' engineering analysis, we must endorse Option 2. If the Corps' analysis is rejected, Option 1 is the only one that can be embraced."

"This department cannot find an adequate basis for proceeding with Option 3 on the existing record. Option 2 is essentially the approach reflected in S. 3506."

He said, "Option 1 is the approach contained in S. 3425 (Nelson bill)."

Binder added the usual request, insisted upon by the Office of Management and Budget that Congress take no action until all possible steps in the Executive Branch are fully completed.

States responding favorably or raising no objections: Arkansas, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

None of the federal agencies responding thus far raised any objections. These include: Department of Labor, Department of Transportation, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Federal Power Commission, and Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.

Although the Corps has not indicated what course of action it will take concerning studies and federal agencies that have not yet submitted their comments, the law does not require the Corps to wait beyond the deadline before processing the report to the secretary of the Army, the Department of Management and Budget and Congress.

Last Thursday, the Senate Commerce Committee reported S. 3425 "to provide for comprehensive fish and wildlife studies of Upper Mississippi and Illinois waterways in relation to the proposed replacement of Locks and Dam 26 at Alton, Ill."

The bill introduced in May by Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) was sent to the Senate Committee on Public Works and may be subject to hearing before that committee's Subcommittee on Water Resources, which included Senator Nelson as co-sponsors of the legislation: Birch Bayh (D-Ind.); James Buckley (R-N.Y.); and Robert D. (R-Kan.); Gary Hart (D-Colo.); Philip Hart (D-Mich.); Floyd Haskell (D-Colo.); Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.); Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.); William Proxmire (D-Wis.); and Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.).

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, meeting in Las Vegas, passed a resolution June 18 supporting the construction of "an adequate and safe replacement" for Locks and Dam 26.

The resolution:

"Recognizing that the nation's inland waterways system is an integral part of our nation's transportation system; and further recognizing that the Mississippi River system is the largest and most vital component of the inland waterways system, directly contributing to the economic vitality of 24 states, and through interconnections by means of truck lines and railroads to about that many more; and having been made aware by Joint Council 13 and by Teamster Local 54, the Marine Division of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, whose members are employed in inland waterways commerce as officers and workers of barge lines, that the whole Mississippi River system is threatened by an inadequate and unsafe dam and lock structure at Alton, Ill., Locks and Dam 26;

"Having been made aware of the replacement of the inadequate and unsafe Lock and Dam 26 structure has been halted by court action on the part of railroad interests and environmentalists;

"Therefore, be it resolved by this convention, that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters call on Congress to authorize as quickly as possible the construction of an adequate and safe replacement for the present lock and dam at Alton, Ill., and on President Ford and his administration to support such legislation."

U.S. Employment Service opposes 'competition'

Labor granted $25,000 to the National Research Corp. to determine "whether classified help wanted ads are (1) an accurate reflection of local labor market and (2) of significant use to employers and job seekers."

The researchers studied 20 San Francisco area newspapers and the Salt Lake Tribune and the San Francisco Chronicle Examiner for each of five years from 1972 to 1976.

The study would be to interview employers and job seekers who tried to use these ads in that previous five years.

A 45-page monograph arrived at the conclusion that "the main reason, the reason d'être, for why wanted columns seemed to be to serve the interests of the newspaper, a small number of large firms, private employment agencies and national advertisers."

"Though the job seeker is sometimes distressed at this point he regarded as a genuine open market place that functions with the convenience of the job seeker as its central concern."

That sounded like "dirty pool" and newspaper spokesmen protested the study as inadequate by trying to project national conclusions from a study of only Sunday papers in one city.

Labor said corrections would be made, but they never were.

Then in December 1974, the Manpower Administration gave another grant of $242,537 to Olympus "to develop means by which a local labor market and its rate of penetration in the local labor market, and to compare that with the stock of the available labor force, both systems through 12 months and compare the flow of all new jobs through both systems for six weeks."

The study was to be made in 12 cities and the grant expired March 14 this year, but no findings have been reported.

Gabriel noted that "every day 1,765 daily newspapers print over 60 million copies and circulate them to over 100 million readers through 1,500,000 carriers and dealers."

He said because "it could include a ban on certain ads from newspapers, under certain conditions."

Instead, he expressed strong support for FR 763, which calls on Congress to review, evaluate and amend the Wagner-Peyser Act.

It states that the USES objectives be devoted entirely to providing assistance to the many unemployed and disadvantaged in the nation.

"Any legislation that would forbid or limit the advertising of job opportunities is a disservice to the millions of Americans who read classified help wanted ads."

Gabriel concluded, "I think it would be wrong and unreasonable to force these people to visit a USES facility daily to obtain this same information at taxpayers' expense."

We think the clincher on the argument was provided by the subcommittee in previous testimony by Carl Forster, personnel and industrial relations manager of the Milwaukee Die Casting Company, who said:

"We have had an open order with the (Employment) Service for the past two months for a tool and die maker, and have only one applicant referred to us."

"This applicant is a tool room machinist, but not a tool and die maker."

"During this period, we have simultaneously run newspaper advertisements, and have had about 20 applicants. Of these, we have hired five."

"It has been our experience, and I know others who share it with us, that generally we will attract a higher quality applicant from our advertisements."

"The best applicants are reading advertisements and following them up."

"This appears to be a desperate appeal, because no human being has a job that is without some dissatisfactions and imperfections. This kind of advertising is counter-productive and negative in nature."

Gabriel suggests research to find out how to reach the seven million unemployed and disadvantaged — perhaps a nationwide campaign in drawing unemployment benefits.

He said "Job Service" advertisements would clearly identify itself as the USES and not masquerade as a service of private enterprise.

He called it "deceptive" — not condoned for the private sector when used by USES.

A bill, HR 50, and its companion, S. 50, are cause for concern because they "could include a ban on certain ads from newspapers, under certain conditions."

Instead, he expressed strong support for FR 763, which calls on Congress to review, evaluate and amend the Wagner-Peyser Act.

It states that the USES objectives be devoted entirely to providing assistance to the many unemployed and disadvantaged in the nation.

"Any legislation that would

experts stated firmly that the atomic bomb couldn't possibly work.

But why pick on the military? Civilian estimates of future technology have been at least as far off.

In 1899, the director of the U.S. Patent Office urged President McKinley to close the patent office to new inventions "everything that can be invented has been invented."

Not long after the birth of the airplane, astronomer William Pickering wrote, "The popular mind often pictures gigantic flying machines speeding across the Atlantic carrying innumerable passengers. It seems safe to say that such ideas must be wholly visionary."

Wilbur Wright, who presumably believed in airplanes, had seen any future for the horseless carriage.

Thomas Edison was convinced that AC (alternating current) electricity was too dangerous for general use; I wonder if the anti-nuclear people know that.

Resource depletion prediction is a specialty in itself. It's positively amazing the number of times we are supposed to have run out of this-and-that by now.

Noted over 100 years ago, the little British economist Stanley Jevons predicted an imminent shortage of coal.

Theodore Roosevelt fretted, in 1908, that we were in danger of exhausting our mineral resources.

An expert study in 1929 forecast the end of world tin reserves in 10 years. A similar study, made in 1944, said the U.S.A. would run out of tin, nickel, zinc, lead and manganese by 1974.

In 1972, the Club of Rome was forecasting the end of tin supplies in "only" 15 years.

There are schools of scientists that predict the end of civilization through a gradual cooling of the climate, because of our actions.

Another school of scientists predicts the end of civilization through a gradual heating up of the climate, because of man's activities.

No doubt they've got some confused sound bites, but occurrences of both disasters simultaneously.

And so it goes. Throughout history there has been a persistent tendency to underestimate the potential of future technology — and an equally persistent tendency to overestimate the available

Patient room smoking ban at hospital

A revised smoking policy affecting patients, hospital associates and the visiting public will be instituted at St. Elizabeth Hospital, officials announced today. The policy will become effective July 1.

Smoking will be prohibited in hospital corridors, elevators and patient areas, including patient rooms.

Neither visitors nor patients will be allowed to smoke in patient rooms. Other places where smoking will be prohibited include potentially hazardous areas and some office areas.

"No smoking" signs, complete with printed regulations, will be posted in hospital hallways, elevators and patient rooms.

Places where smoking will be allowed include the cafeteria and coffee shop, associates' locker rooms, public rest rooms, lobbies, solariums and lounges.

"Healthy atmospheric conditions for patients and fire safety are the primary reasons for the enforcement of this updated policy. Smoking prevention steps are being taken also to comply with Joint Commission Accreditation of Hospitals specifications," a spokesman explained.

"St. Elizabeth Hospital is one of many hospitals in the St. Louis metropolitan area adopting such smoking restrictions."

"This particular policy is a continuation of a phase-in program which began over a year ago with the removal of cigarette vending machines from the hospital grounds."

Hearing set on Venice park budget

The Venice Park Board will hold a public hearing Friday, July 16, at 7 p.m. at the Venice Recreation Center, 305 Broadway, on a proposed 1976-77 fiscal year budget of $104,325. The new budget is an increase of $9,920 over last year's appropriation.

The proposed general corporate fund budget is $61,975, up $6,276 from last year. Expenditures in the general fund include $21,808 in the administrative fund, up $5,455; $2,950 in the legal fund, same as last year; $28,935 in the park grounds fund, up $660; $1,500 in the park police fund, same as last year; $1,705 in the general park expense fund, down $135; and $3,080 for the finance department, same as last year.

The recreation fund is budgeted at $31,700, which is $1,800 more than last year; $7,500 is allotted to the Illinois municipal retirement fund, an increase of $600 over last year; $2,100 is in the liability insurance fund, up $1,350; and $250 in the audit account, same as last year.

Nameoki may borrow for retirement fund

The Town Board of Auditors of Nameoki Township will be asked Monday night to consider the best method to give financial aid to the township's municipal retirement fund, which is running out of money.

Louis Whitsell, supervisor of Nameoki Township, told the board at its last meeting June 14 that only $540 remains in the municipal retirement fund, which is not enough to meet the next payment.

Whitsell also noted new law revenues are not expected until sometime in September so means should be sought to provide adequate funds for municipal retirement through September.

He asked the finance committee to study whether the township should issue anticipation warrants, which must be repaid when taxes are first received, or should borrow money from some other township fund.

Auditor Norman Hessler, chairman of the finance committee, said he will report at the next meeting on the committee's recommendations.

An opinion also is expected Monday night from the township's attorney, H. Carl Runge Jr., whether recent trustee appointments made by the board to street lighting districts in Miracle Manor and State Park Place are valid appointments.

It was noted at the last meeting that a new state law has given the authority to county boards to appoint trustees to street lighting districts.

Also on the agenda for Monday night's meeting is the hiring of a new custodian for the town hall, replacing a custodian who resigned.

Bills ordered paid by the board during the previous meeting included $9,413 from the town fund, $1,513 from revenue sharing funds, $3,461 from the road and bridge fund, $4,148 from the special hard road fund, and $2,491 from general assistance.

Permission was granted to send Fred Kudelka, rabies control officer, to a University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service animal control training program. He was granted expenses and $30 for the registration fee.
